

Red Rockets Cause Havoc in the South

SAIGON (AP) — More than 30 towns and bases in South Vietnam were shelled by the Viet Cong during the night and 100-pound rockets ripped through a U.S. Navy dock at Da Nang. The rockets sank two big landing craft and heavily damaged a third.

The enemy rockets touched off a series of explosions aboard the ammunition-laden boats. At least one American sailor was killed, 51 sailors and eight Marines were wounded and 300 tons of ammunition were destroyed, U.S. spokesmen said.

AP correspondent Edwin Q. White reported that the fronts were blown off nine small warehouses loaded with everything from chocolate bars to bombs.

Part of one of the boats was hurled 150 yards across a road, and pieces of metal up to a foot square were thrown farther. Ammunition explosions damaged armored personnel carriers, trucks, bulldozers and other equipment in the area.

Officials, fearing that some 500-pound bombs stored nearby might explode, evacuated 1,000 civilians from a half square mile area surrounding the dock. The civilians began moving back into the area this morning with the dock still littered with debris and explosives.

At least 100 enemy troops were reported pushing toward Saigon today, and military spokesmen reported several other indications that small units were attempting to assemble for an assault on the capital.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were intercepted 10 miles east of Saigon Thursday. They were reported still fighting today as U.S. 1st Infantry Division soldiers followed up a night bomb and artillery attack with a sweep of the area's rice paddies and marshes.

A U.S. spokesman said at least five of the enemy were known killed, and eight others were taken prisoner. Two Americans were killed in the fighting, one helicopter was shot down, and three others were hit by enemy ground fire but managed to get back to their bases.

The U.S. Command reported American infantrymen and helicopter gunships killed 101 enemy soldiers in four other fights northwest and southwest of Saigon Thursday and today.

American and South Vietnamese spoiling operations and quick deployment of troops have slowed down the spring offensive, military spokesmen said, but the enemy is still able to launch massive attacks.

Allied sources claimed 6,300 enemy troops have been killed since Sunday, the highest weekly death toll since 8,786 were reported killed in one week of the enemy offensive last May.

About 275 American troops have been killed and hundreds more wounded, the sources said.

South Vietnamese military headquarters announced that 510 government soldiers have been killed this week, with 1,871 wounded and 64 missing. These are the government's highest losses since last May.

U.S. Marines trying to cut off Communist supply lines from Laos reported uncovering the biggest enemy arms and ammunition stockpile of the war. The Marines from the 9th Regiment said they pulled 67 tons of supplies, 90 per cent of it new, from bunkers north of the A Shau Valley and less than two miles from the Laotian border.

Pettis County Accepted Into Carrollton Agency

Pettis County was accepted into Missouri Valley Human Resources Development Corp., after a vote by that agency's area board at a meeting Thursday night in Carrollton, Mo.

The action makes Pettis County part of a six-county anti-poverty organization that also encompasses Saline, Ray, Chariton, Lafayette and Carroll Counties. Headquarters of the agency is in Carrollton.

One immediate effect of the merger was felt in Sedalia Friday, where Department of Agriculture commodities were to be distributed to Volunteer Head Start children at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Ninth and Montgomery, where Head Start classes are held.

Another effect of Pettis County's merger with Missouri Valley is the probability of setting up a year-round Head Start and day care program here such as is currently in effect in the five other counties. Pettis County had only been funded for Summer Head Start by the federal government when it was part of Mid-Missouri Community Action Corp.

An official of the agency in Carrollton said the voice vote by the 30-member area board Thursday night was favorable to admitting Pettis County by a "good margin." One stipulation was that Pettis County abide by the bylaws of Missouri Valley.

Now that it is a member of Missouri Valley, Pettis County must elect another three members from the county board to be delegates to the area board meetings in Carrollton. Before, the county had only provided three members to the Mid-Missouri area board.

Acceptance by Missouri Valley Human Resources Development Corp., comes on the heels of the departure of Mid-Missouri from Sedalia, where it had maintained its headquarters since its formation nearly three years ago. That agency is now in temporary quarters in Lincoln, awaiting approval of a merger with the West Central Missouri Development Corp., Appleton City.

Presumably Pettis County anti-poverty officials will soon be meeting with Missouri Valley personnel to set up programs for Pettis County and provide some degree of continuity with existing programs.

Executive director of the Missouri Valley agency is Chance Blauer, Carrollton.

Pneumonia Sets Back Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, struggling to recover from a series of heart attacks and high-risk surgery last Sunday, has developed pneumonia, Army doctors reported today.

A morning bulletin from Walter Reed Army Hospital said the 78-year-old general "is generally weaker this morning, but is cooperative and determined to overcome this latest complication."

Eisenhower, at the hospital since last April after suffering a heart attack in California, underwent abdominal surgery Sunday after doctors found an intestinal obstruction that threatened his life.

Hospital bulletins earlier this week called attention to the former president's progress, including a statement Tuesday describing his recovery as "little short of remarkable" and saying Eisenhower had progressed to the point where he felt well enough to read.

Doctors' reports remained encouraging Wednesday, saying his "postoperative course has followed the expected pattern" and reporting his "vital signs have remained stable."

The vital signs refer to such things as blood pressure, pulse and breathing rate.

Observers felt Thursday's bulletin seemed more guarded as it reported Eisenhower "continues satisfactory considering his age, past medical history and the fact that he is still in the critical postoperative period."

That was the last bulletin until today's which said the general "experienced some respiratory difficulty during the night which is due to pneumonia which has developed in the right lung base."

And, for the first time, the bulletin was relayed first through the Pentagon before being released at the hospital.

Eisenhower's wife Mamie and son John returned to the hospital from their Gettysburg, Pa., and Phoenixville, Pa., homes for his surgery. John left Wednesday but the former First Lady remained in a hospital suite next to her husband's.

While Eisenhower was in the hospital recovery from the April heart attack, he suffered two more attacks Aug. 5 and Aug. 16—his sixth and seventh.

At the time of his surgery, he had rallied to the point where he was walking short distances and receiving visitors such as President Nixon and former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

A private surgeon not associated with Eisenhower's case said today the lung complication could be very serious because of his age and past medical history.

He described the complication as a usual thing in operations of the type the former president underwent Sunday.

Nixon and De Gaulle Confer

PARIS (AP) — President Nixon came to Paris to a cordial welcome Friday and met more than two hours with Charles de Gaulle in what the French called a good beginning to the climactic talks of the American leader's tour.

A spokesman for the French president at the Elysee Palace said the talks lasted 2 hours and 10 minutes in a "frank and cordial atmosphere."

"This is a good beginning for the conversations, which will continue tomorrow," he added.

There was no indication of what subjects the two chiefs of state discussed. President Nixon said in his arrival address that he had come here seeking De Gaulle's help in efforts to "build a new sense of Western purpose" and to seek a "just and lasting peace." He had urged that old quarrels be forgotten in the search for a better future.

De Gaulle long has been a balking ally of the United States.

There was little sign of hostility among the crowds who welcomed the U.S. chief executive to this "City of Light." The outpouring was not massive, but it was markedly warm to the American visitor. The Communist party had called for anti-Nixon demonstrations when he arrived in the city. Informants said fear of violent Red demonstrations kept many Parisians away.

Nixon at once extended the hand of friendship to De Gaulle's France, with which U.S. policymakers have long been at odds.

In return, De Gaulle recalled traditional French-American friendship and said he attached the greatest importance to the exchanges he will have with his guest. De Gaulle ended his brief welcome address at Orly Airport with the words: "Long live the United States."

After a moving ceremony at which Nixon presided at the placing of a wreath on the memorial to France's unknown soldier, the American President was driven down the broad Champs Elysees, crowded with well-wishers, to De Gaulle's Elysees Palace for the first of a series of meetings with the French leader.

Nixon underscored the importance he attaches to this visit by devoting 10 hours of his 48-hour stay in France to talks with De Gaulle, some in private, some with advisers of both present. The talks concern the most urgent problems facing the United States in Europe and Asia.

These discussions came against a background of

Bothwell Lodge, Estate Might Go to the State

Sen. John Ryan introduced a bill Wednesday in the Missouri Senate making Bothwell Lodge and about 70 acres in the Stoney Ridge Farm estate available to Missouri in compliance with the will of the late John H. Bothwell.

According to Henry Salveter and Ryan, the original will left by Bothwell stipulated the estate be left to 20 trustees and that when the original 20 grew to less than five, the estate be made available to the state.

Pothwell's intention was to provide the property for use by the state for educational or charitable purposes. The lodge is about five miles north of Sedalia on U.S. Highway 65.

Senator Ryan said the bill he introduced Wednesday also sought appropriations for maintenance of the structure.

Originally, Bothwell set aside a $20,000 trust fund, earnings of which were to be used for maintenance of the land and five buildings on it, including the main house, commonly known as Bothwell Lodge.

Presently there are only four survivors of the original 20 members: Mrs. Charles E. Yeater, Sedalia; Miss Jennie Morev, Fairview Nursing Home; Miss Helen Harris, Nashville, Tenn.; and James Bothwell, address unknown.

The state was given five years by Bothwell to decide if it wanted the property. If the state should reject the offer, the property would go up for sale, and proceeds of the sale would go to the trustees of Bothwell Memorial Hospital, Salveter said.

With the death recently of the fifth member of the remaining 20 original members of the lodge, Miss Ada Bothwell of North Carolina, income to maintain the buildings and grounds ceased, as provided for in the will.

Senator Ryan reported that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had indicated his intention to come to Sedalia sometime this year to view the facilities, considered by many to be among the most picturesque in the county.

Lower Voting Age Given Approval

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The House of Delegates gave tentative approval Thursday to a proposed constitutional amendment lowering the state's voting age to 19. It was the first proposal to reduce the minimum voting age below 21 to receive favorable action in either house of the Maryland Legislature.

Job Bias Complaints Are Filed

Two complaints involving alleged racial discrimination in employment in Sedalia were brought before the Human Rights Commission Thursday night.

The commission, in its regular monthly meeting in the parish hall of Calvary Episcopal Church, agreed to investigate the complaints to see if they are valid.

If the complaints are legitimate, the commission will seek to conciliate the problem on the local level, according to the Rev. Marvin Albright, chairman. The last resort would be a complaint to the State Human Rights Commission, which must be filed by the complainant, Mr. Albright said.

The Human Rights Commission also discussed the state complaints filed against the Sedalia school system for alleged discrimination in public accommodations and employment. The local commission, which has gone on record opposing the operation of Hubbard School on an all-Negro basis, decided to await action by the state on its complaint.

Eight members attended the meeting. The commission is two members short of its normal 12-member make-up, but Mr. Albright said he expected Mayor Ralph Walker to recommend two appointments to the City Council to fill the vacancies at the council's next meeting.

Two 'Quakes Are Recorded In California

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — Two gentle, rolling earthquakes centered 25 miles northeast of Los Angeles—squarely over the San Andreas fault—hit for nearly a minute Thursday night.

No serious damage was reported.

A sheriff's officer six miles from Palmdale said telephone service between Palmdale and Lancaster was cut at the time of the quakes. "The lines may be down," Deputy Charles Jensen said.

Seismologists at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said the quakes which hit at 8:44 p.m. registered 4.3 on the Richter scale. Such magnitude can cause slight damage to buildings at the epicenter.

College Riots Condemned At a Governors Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors have condemned campus disorders but rejected a call for a federal investigation out of fear it might stir more unrest.

By overwhelming voice vote, the governors approved a resolution Thursday saying "lawless acts by a small segment of the student population must not be allowed to interfere with the vast numbers of students who are seeking to exercise their educational opportunities."

The action came after Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell assured the National Governors Conference on the second day of its two-day winter meeting that the Justice Department is keeping an eye on campus disorders.

The proposal by California Gov. Ronald Reagan, whose own state has had some of the severest upheavals, would have called on President Nixon to order a study "to determine if there is a nationwide plan or organization behind the current outbreaks."

California has been troubled by sporadic unrest at the University of California's Berkeley campus and at San Francisco State College.

"I see no need to foment trouble in Florida by indicating it is a federal responsibility," said that state's chief executive, Claude Kirk.

"In terms of the Michigan situation, I do not believe a federal investigation is necessary or advisable at this time," said new Gov. William G. Milliken.

The governors, many of whom spent a good deal of the two days talking about the campus problem, thus indicated agreement with suggestions presented by the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University.

Hesburgh, who was praised earlier by President Nixon for his policy of dealing firmly with protesters at the South Bend, Ind., university, sent his recommendations to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in a letter made public about the time Reagan made his proposal.

Hesburgh said it is important to assume "that the university

Forty-One Inches of Snow Slow Things Down a Bit

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Gloucester men used to go down to the sea in ships. This week they are going down to the supermarket on skis.

Two prolonged storms have left this North Shore commercial fishing center and its 26,000 residents buried under 41 inches of snow.

Mayor Joseph F. Grace gave the Police Department authority to commandeer privately owned snow removal equipment and by Thursday—four days after the second storm hit—some of the major streets were passable.

The rest of the town still is snow bound.

Drifts have blown higher than a tall man's head.

An outbound train which never made it out of town has been buried in snow since Tuesday. Its passengers, all from the area, made it home afoot.

Most grocery stores are still well-stocked and—considering the problems in getting there—fairly well patronized.

"I don't know how they do it," said fireman Leroy Garland, who uses a little snow plow on his jeep to pack down the snow on his street.

"I've seen guys ski down to the store and I've seen others come down by snow shoe. With my little plow I manage to get through and I've taken the neighbors down to buy groceries."

"It looks like the only way they are ever going to get the snow out of here is to use a bulldozer on it. Some of the side streets have from six inches to a foot and a half packed down on them."

Some fuel oil dealers reported trouble in making home deliveries, but no serious power or heating problems were reported.

Police Chief John J. Coyle and his men are delivering food to those who cannot ski, sled or plow to market.

At Addison Gilbert Hospital, the only one in Gloucester, they've had a bigger problem in getting people in than getting new patients in.

"We've got the usual influx of broken hips and heart attacks that we expect in any major storm," said hospital Administrator Tucker Vye, "and since a lot of patients haven't been able to get home we are a little crowded."

"I wish I could say that a mother delivered her baby in a snow bank, or someone did an appendectomy in the cab of a snow plow," he added. "But the truth is—things are pretty routine."

Clergy Day At WAFB Is Monday

WHITEMAN AFB — One-hundred twenty clergymen of all faiths will attend Whiteman Air Force Base's Annual Clergy Day on Monday. This yearly event attracts clergymen from communities throughout the 351st Strategic Missile Wing's Minuteman complex, encompassing approximately 16,000 square miles.

Registration for the special day begins at 9 a.m. The program begins 25 minutes later with welcoming remarks by the commanders of the 17th Strategic Aerospace Division, 351st Strategic Missile Wing and the 351st Combat Support Group. Following a briefing by the base chaplain, Lt. Col. D.J. Kalal, on the mission and activities of the chaplain staff agency, a seminar will be led by Chaplain (Col.) John F. Albert, command chaplain, Strategic Air Command.

Chaplain Albert, a Roman Catholic priest of the Diocese of Rochester, is responsible for chaplains' activities throughout the global locations of SAC units. Serving on the staff of the commander in chief, SAC, Chaplain Albert advises the commander in chief on all matters pertaining to the religious and moral welfare of SAC personnel.

From Minneapolis, Minn., will be Pastor Carroll N. Anderson, a member of the Council of Executives, American Lutheran Church. Pastor Anderson, a former U.S. Army enlisted man, has served as an Air Force chaplain and is presently very active in Air National Guard affairs. Pastor Anderson will occupy the pulpit Sunday during the 8, 9 and 11 a.m. services at the Whiteman Chapel.

Church at Work," showing how churches can fulfill their mission by sharing in the work of the Home Mission Board.

Stevens Always On The Move

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Perhaps you've met Paul Stevens.

It may have been in New York or Washington, Hong Kong or Saigon. Maybe it was Moscow, or London, or Paris or Bangkok. Jerusalem? Possibly. But it probably wasn't Fort Worth, although his home is here.

Dr. Paul M. Stevens, 51, is director of the Radio and Television Commission of the 11 million-member Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

As such, he travels the world, overseeing personally all network television productions for Southern Baptists, plus a variety of other duties.

Dr. Stevens is handsome, articulate and a stylish dresser, a man always on the move.

A graduate of Baylor University at Waco, Tex., he attended theological seminaries in Louisville and Fort Worth, served three years as an Air Force combat chaplain and pastored several churches.

He is now in his 15th year as director of the Radio and Television Commission, headquartered here in a glittering stone and tinted glass structure overlooking the city's fashionable West Side.

With a $1.5-million budget and 75 staff members, the commission is charged with electronically spreading the religious word, not necessarily the Baptist word, around the globe.

The forerunner of the commission was founded on a shoestring in 1938. It assumed its present name in 1954 and a year later shifted from Atlanta, Ga., to Fort Worth.

The commission now is producing 28 radio and television programs heard weekly by an audience estimated at 50 million.

Four programs in Spanish and one each in Russian, Portuguese, Italian, Chinese and Navajo are heard in 40 countries over 425 language stations.

Working with the three major networks—NBC, ABC and CBS—the commission has undertaken some ambitious tasks.

These include color television documentaries such as "Walk Beside Me," dealing with the apostle Paul's missionary journeys, and "The Inheritance," an archeological trek through Old Testament times.

One of the most successful, and expensive ventures has been "Jot," a series of 4½-minute color cartoons designed for children aged 4 to 10.

The commission is financed totally by Southern Baptists, and its radio and television productions are offered on tape and film to stations for public service broadcasting.

"We don't expect over the air to necessarily convert people," explained the Rev. Ed Shipman, the commission's promotion director.

"We are trying to create a spiritual climate with radio and television that will make people receptive to the Christian message. We also are trying to make a genuine Christian contribution to the moral and spiritual life of America."

Money-Losing Idea Has Turned Into a Success

By JOHN GALE
Associated Press Writer
COPENHAGEN (AP) — Nearly 19 years ago, an enterprising Danish village priest got started in the travel business by organizing a coach trip to Spain for his war-weary parishioners.

The trip lost money. So the priest organized a second international excursion to break even.

That was the start of a multimillion dollar globe-trotting concern as a fleet of 17 aircraft, many of them pure jet, which carry Scandinavian sunshine-seekers to 30 widely scattered resorts. The tourists are set down in high-class hotels of which four—two in Spain, one in Austria and one in the Canary Islands—are totally owned by Pastor Krogager's interests.

The priest aims unselfishly to run a business which not only makes money but attracts the greatest possible custom by providing services at rock bottom prices.

Along the way, Pastor Krogager has become a millionaire.

"I am a kroner millionaire many times over and also a dollar millionaire," he said in an interview.

"I don't say the money is unimportant. It is very interesting to be a millionaire. But we are not drinking all the money up. My wife, Gorma, and I continue to live as ordinary clergy people."

They live as they have for more than a quarter of a century in the tiny parish of Tjaereborg a few kilometers inland from the thriving West Jutland port of Esbjerg. Their home is a 10-room vicarage, a converted farm house, with a lucky horseshoe over the front door and crocuses blooming in the courtyard.

Across the fields lies a tiny white-washed church, one of the two in which Pastor Krogager preaches.

At 59, he is lean and dashing in appearance. "Of course, he said, "we started in the travel business 1,000 years ago when the Vikings went plundering. In those days, we used to kill off the hostellers. But since we started again in 1950, certain operational changes have been necessary."

More seriously, he added: "This travel thing is an immensely interesting thing to be doing. It's a business and we are not sentimental about it. But we are glad to be able to conduct good business with something which is in many ways a public service because of its cheapness."

"For me, it will always be a sideline and my main work remains in this parish which I first came to 36 years ago."

The tranquility of the vicarage contrasts sharply with the buzz of activity in the highly computerized travel office headquarters a mile along the road. Here more than 100 girls handle the bookkeeping and telephone reservations, while their work is recorded by U.S.-manufactured electronic equipment. Other offices are scattered throughout Scandinavia and the priest's organization today employs more than 1,000 persons in various categories.

Youth Conference Dates Determined

The Christian Church in District V has set dates and begun to develop plans for an experimental youth conference for juniors and seniors in high school June 2-7. Site of the conference is undecided.

The director of the Christian Youth Fellowship (CYF) conference, the Rev. Gary R. Prichard, pastor of the Christian Church in Lexington, said that the program and areas of study were chosen by the youth of the Christian Churches in District V. Five areas of interest were developed by the District V CYF cabinet at a meeting at the First Christian Church in Marshall.

Pastor to Speak

The Rev. Marvin Albright, pastor of the United Church of Christ, will be the speaker on the KDRO, 8:45 a.m. Morning Devotional program for the week of March 3-7. The program is sponsored by the Sedalia Pettis-County Ministers Association.

Good Description Of Fugitive Given

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Police were ordered to be on the lookout for a man handcuffed to a wheel chair. James F. Brown, superintendent of detention, said the man complained of being ill when arrested and was taken to Grady Hospital where he was placed in a wheel chair and handcuffed to it. The officer on duty went to check other prisoners at the hospital and when he returned the man, handcuffs, and wheel chair had vanished.

City Fires

Firemen were called to 1025 East Third at 3:21 p.m. Thursday where lint in a vent overheated setting fire to the clothing in a dryer. Damage was estimated at $50.

Accidents

Two hit-and-run accidents were reported to Sedalia police Thursday.

The first occurred about 8:32 p.m. at Broadway and Ohio. A 1967 Oldsmobile, stopped, driven by Edith Naomi Jackson, 315 North Quincy, sustained damaged to the front end. The driver of the Oldsmobile said another car ahead of her had stopped, then backed up, colliding with her car, and driven away.

The second report came at 8:39 p.m. from the 600 block on East 13th. A parked 1966 Pontiac, owned by Janice K. Fatkhe, 2400 South Woodlawn, sustained damage to the left front end, police reported.

There were no injuries in either case.

Minor damage resulted to two cars involved in a collision on the Morris Motel driveway at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Involved were a 1968 Plymouth driven by Barbara J. Williams, 43, El Dorado Springs, and 1 1968 Pontiac driven by Seabron E. Owens, 51, Independence.

The front of the Volkswagen was damaged.

Sheriff Report

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax reported Thursday that he obtained statements from two Kansas City men Wednesday which indicated that they were connected with a break-in at Wiley's grocery store in Hughesville the night of Feb. 3.

The men, Charles Simpson and Larry Greeve, are being held in Maysville, in DeKalb County, north of Kansas City, in connection with several small town burglaries, according to Fairfax, and charges have been filed against them there.

Fairfax indicated that the pair admitted to being in Hughesville on Feb. 3. A pair of boots taken in the Hughesville burglary were recovered in Kansas City but the rest of the loot had been disposed of.

Police Report

Mrs. Dorothy Lawson reported to police that someone tried to break into an apartment at 401 West Seventh sometime Thursday afternoon. Two pry marks were found on the door to the apartment. Nothing was reported missing.

Kalo Botthcher, 1812 South Barrett, reported to police three small boys threw rocks at his car, chipping the paint, while he was driving past the intersection of 16th and Quincy Wednesday night.

Nixon

strained U.S.-French relations dating many years. But Nixon expressed hope he would be joined by the French in looking forward and forgetting past aggravations.

Nixon continued to look fit and happy despite the grueling schedule since Sunday when he began this 10,500-mile tour.

France is the fifth capital of Nixon's stop—appropriately, he said, the last of the allied capitals. This again underlined the importance of France in Nixon's hopes for Europe's future and a stable peace.

At the Arc De Triomphe, after standing with closed eyes during a muffled roll of drums and a bugle call in honor of France's dead, Nixon mingled enthusiastically with a throng of French and American well-wishers.

Then, on his way from the ceremony, en route to the Elysees Palace and his first meeting with De Gaulle, he ordered his limousine stopped when he spotted girls in the Champs Elysees crowd carrying parasols of Stars and Stripes fabrics.

To the dismay of security men, Nixon leaped from De Gaulle's spanking new limousine and approached the sidewalk through behind police barriers to shake hands with the teen-age girls.

Nixon, again agitating his security men, had himself boosted to the trunk of the limousine so he could wave happily at the crowds, two and three deep on either side of the broad avenue. The crowd chanted "Nixon Nixon!"

Nixon's arrival at France's Orly Airport, two minutes ahead of the scheduled time, was marked by the usual pomp and ceremony attendant upon the visit of a chief of state.

Tall, erect President de Gaulle greeted him with a warm smile. The 56-year-old American chief executive and the 78-year-old French chief of state stood together at attention through the playing of the national anthems and reviewed the honor guard before proceeding at a swift pace into town.

Nixon is staying at the Quai d'Orsay, the Foreign Ministry building which is traditionally put at the disposal of visiting leaders.

Both Nixon and De Gaulle spoke their airport speeches from memory. The U.S. President's words varied considerably from his prepared text, but the theme was the same. The White House considers all prepared presidential texts official.

At one point during Nixon's journey in the French capital, a group of young people behind metal police barriers shouted anti-American slogans and scattered leaflets demanding an end to the war in Vietnam.

Rockets

patrol train carrying South Vietnamese troops in the Hai Van pass north of Da Nang Thursday. Reports said two soldiers and three civilians were injured when two mines on the tracks exploded and derailed four flat cars.

U.S. Air Force B52 bombers dropped more than 1,500 tons of explosives on positions of the North Vietnamese 7th Division along the Cambodian border. The raids were part of the campaign to keep the troops from moving toward Saigon.

John W. Ream, 2401 South Washington, disturbing the peace, forfeited a $25 bond.

Michael L. Carr, Route 2, failure to pay seven over-time parking tickets, forfeited a $11.75 bond.

Robert Arthur Walkington, 2245 East Broadway, failure to pay eight over-time parking tickets, forfeited a $13 bond.

'Child Molester' Film Shown To Kiwanis Club

"The Child Molester," a moving picture of current interest to Sedalians, was shown by Chief of Police William Miller to the Kiwanis club at its meeting in Bothwell Hotel Thursday noon.

In an introductory talk, Chief Miller explained the purpose of the film was to make adults and children more conscious of the dangers inherent in ignoring potential molesters who are not hobos or bum types but come from all classes of society. He stressed the responsibility of parents' teaching their children to avoid invitations of strangers.

The film was paid for by members of the police department and is available for showing to any groups interested, Chief Miller said.

The speaker was presented by Bill Burkholder, program chairman.

President Roy Brown reported receipts from purchase of tickets for Pancake Day have now reached $2,424 with a prospect the net will be $2,000 for the club's youth projects.

The Rev. Medford Speaker explained the purposes of a petition seeking reinstatement

State Patrol Nets Escapees In Southeast

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — Three Missouri State Penitentiary inmates who slipped away from their guards during a basketball game of Columbia were captured by a highway patrolman near New Madrid Thursday.

The convicts, Kenneth Grissom, 39; Jerry James, 29, and Bill Bayles, 48, escaped Wednesday. They were apprehended by Cpl. Melvin Moyers of Sikeston.

They were taken to the Pemisicot County jail at Caruthersville.

Authorities said the patrol had information that the men were seen in Sikeston. Moyers spotted a car occupied by three men on Interstate 55 south of New Madrid about 4 p.m. Thursday and stopped it.

The officer said the three men did not resist.

Grissom was sentenced to 18 years in prison from Laclede County for armed robbery. James was serving 10 years from Pemisicot County for stealing and Bayles was sentenced from Buchanan County to six years for forgery.

Teen-agers Are Blase On Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — What do teen-agers think about today's sex-charged movies? It is helpful for a film reporter to learn grass-roots opinions, as I did during two days of talks and seminars with seniors of Pasceack Valley and Pasceack Hill high schools. This was part of a pilot program financed by New Jersey and the federal government to bring speakers on various problems to the schools. The sessions are video-taped for later use.

Here is what I learned by returning to high school:

Today's students are surprisingly well-informed on the film industry's new G-M-R-X classification of movies according to moral content.

Seeing a sexy movie has no particular effect on the relations of a boy and a girl on a date.

Films can bridge the generation gap.

The latter was illustrated by one boy who said that he saw "The Graduate" with his parents. The film concerns a college graduate who is seduced by his girl friend's mother.

"After we saw 'The Graduate,' my folks and I went home and had a long talk about morals," the boy said. "It was the first time we had been able to communicate on that level. I enjoyed the talk."

On the other hand, another boy said he and his father saw "The Graduate" separately. "My dad thought it was trash," the student reported.

Many parents seem to feel that "The Graduate" is stacked against their side of the well-known gap, since it shows Dustin Hoffman as a young man who is given everything but attention and understanding by his status-conscious parents. The film must have struck a responsive chord with today's youth; most of those in the seminars had seen it.

How do girls feel about going on dates to films that feature sex and nudity?

"It depends on who your date is," answered one attractive girl. "If it's a boy you know and like, it makes no difference. You can discuss the picture afterward with him, and it's no big deal. Seeing nude bodies doesn't mean anything, you can do that in art museums."

The students seemed unimpressed by the rash of new films concerning homosexuality and lesbianism. One girl commented: "I can't see why stars like Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton appear in pictures like that. Don't they care what their fans think?"

Surgeon Says Rejection Still Critical Problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley's heart transplant team warned today that the human heart appears to be far more vulnerable to rejection by the body than scientists thought a year ago.

Based on their 18 transplants in 17 patients, the team said that in the case of poor tissue matching between donor and recipient, rejecting seems to be "inexorably progressive."

Says Relatives Shouldn't Hold The Decision

CHICAGO (AP) — A Virginia pathologist said Thursday it may become necessary to authorize organ transplants from dead persons over the objections of their survivors in order to save the lives of persons critically ill.

However, others participating with him in symposiums at the American Academy of Forensic Sciences argued that consent of next of kin should be required.

The Virginian, Dr. Geoffrey T. Mann, said. "We are going to have to educate the public to overcome the unrealistic veneration of the dead in this country."

Mann, chief medical examiner for the Commonwealth of Virginia and a professor at the University of Virginia medical school, said consideration for the living rather than the dead should be paramount when medical authorities are deciding whether to make a transplant.

Mann acknowledged that it is rare for families of the dead to refuse permission for transplants when the importance is explained to them.

Blair Sadler, a Washington lawyer who has done research for the National Institute of Health on heart transplant problems, maintained that consent is necessary for organ transplants.

Sadler said that ideally the state perhaps should be empowered to use tissue and organs from the dead at will, but that public opinion at this time will not accept such a view.

Dr. Donald Browning, a University of Chicago theologian, took a similar stand.

He said that in the future it may be considered the "religious thing to do" to transplant organs, but that at "this transitional moment in history" the next of kin have rights over the bodies of their dead relatives.

NEW YORK (AP) — Speeches at separate times during the past few years by a priest, a psychiatrist and a former presidential cabinet officer are providing inspiration today for a group of superinsurance salesmen.

Often such men are thought to be animated by slogans, self-help books, pep talks, sales meetings. Their overriding motivation, it is sometimes popularly believed, is a hunger for commissions.

These insurers, members of the Million Dollar Round Table, now are preaching involvement, public service, charity, responsibility. Not long ago it seemed preoccupied with self-service: "How can I sell more life insurance?"

In fact, the chief criterion for belonging to the 7,000-member group still is proof of $1 million in sales to at least 10 customers in one year. Its literature refers constantly to excellence, but seems to equate it with money.

The new personality is being promoted through this so-called "Whole Man Concept," a title that might suggest to some that in the past these efficient, disciplined, effective, productive people considered themselves less than whole.

What brought about the conversion?

Tiffany's Glass Withstands Slugs

NEW YORK (AP) — Someone fired a shot through a special shatterproof glass window at Tiffany's but the window held and the thief was unable to get at a $39,000 diamond and ruby necklace on display inside.

Police raced to the Fifth Avenue jewelry store early Thursday when a tremor was recorded on a sensing device attached to the window. They found a small hole, a piece of wire shoved through it, and three expended .45-caliber slugs on the sidewalk.

Tiffany later posted a sign on the window reading: "This window is made of several layers of glass and plastic. It can't be broken through. . . . we would suggest to the would-be burglars that it is safer—and perhaps more profitable—to use their talents to better advantage."

In August, 1958, jewels valued at $163,000 were stolen from a smashed window.

Russian Romeo's Con Game Halted

MOSCOW (AP) — A Russian who passed himself off as a foreign correspondent had great success with women—until he wound up in jail.

Alexander Korovkin ran up a string of conquests that included teachers, doctors and editors, with the help of a faked broken accent and talk about his assignments in exotic places like Honduras, Pakistan and Spain.

"I always dreamed of being captivated by a real Russian beauty," Korovkin told one of the women. He got $1,555 of her savings on the pretext of buying a car with the money "through his embassy."

Korovkin then disappeared but was caught by the police as he wooed another prospective victim. Now he is in custody facing trial and imprisonment.

Abortion is murder!

The life within a mother has just as much right to existence as a new-born baby and no one has the right to do away with it. The living foetus is a separate human being with its own identity. It is in one stage of development toward becoming a full grown individual and to destroy it is to violate the law of God and man: "Thou shalt not kill."

Despite the arguments that have been offered in support of liberalized abortion laws one fact remains: there is no justification moral or physical for aborting human life. Both the medical and theological sciences broadly agree that human life begins at the moment of conception and wilfully destroying it at anytime thereafter is nothing short of murder.

The contention that abortion should be made legal to protect the health of the mother does not hold water. According to one of the nation's foremost medical specialists in the field, "Women don't become mental or physical cripples as a result of maternity. This whole argument is specious."

"From the viewpoint of medicine," he states, "we doctors can give only one testimony that we are dealing with an innocent human being and that it is not in the medical authority to decide which human beings should live and which should not."

Surgeon Says Rejection Still Critical Problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley's heart transplant team warned today that the human heart appears to be far more vulnerable to rejection by the body than scientists thought a year ago.

Based on their 18 transplants in 17 patients, the team said that in the case of poor tissue matching between donor and recipient, rejecting seems to be "inexorably progressive."

Says Relatives Shouldn't Hold The Decision

CHICAGO (AP) — A Virginia pathologist said Thursday it may become necessary to authorize organ transplants from dead persons over the objections of their survivors in order to save the lives of persons critically ill.

However, others participating with him in symposiums at the American Academy of Forensic Sciences argued that consent of next of kin should be required.

The Virginian, Dr. Geoffrey T. Mann, said. "We are going to have to educate the public to overcome the unrealistic veneration of the dead in this country."

Mann, chief medical examiner for the Commonwealth of Virginia and a professor at the University of Virginia medical school, said consideration for the living rather than the dead should be paramount when medical authorities are deciding whether to make a transplant.

Mann acknowledged that it is rare for families of the dead to refuse permission for transplants when the importance is explained to them.

Blair Sadler, a Washington lawyer who has done research for the National Institute of Health on heart transplant problems, maintained that consent is necessary for organ transplants.

Sadler said that ideally the state perhaps should be empowered to use tissue and organs from the dead at will, but that public opinion at this time will not accept such a view.

Dr. Donald Browning, a University of Chicago theologian, took a similar stand.

He said that in the future it may be considered the "religious thing to do" to transplant organs, but that at "this transitional moment in history" the next of kin have rights over the bodies of their dead relatives.

Teen-agers Are Blase On Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — What do teen-agers think about today's sex-charged movies? It is helpful for a film reporter to learn grass-roots opinions, as I did during two days of talks and seminars with seniors of Pasceack Valley and Pasceack Hill high schools. This was part of a pilot program financed by New Jersey and the federal government to bring speakers on various problems to the schools. The sessions are video-taped for later use.

Here is what I learned by returning to high school:

Today's students are surprisingly well-informed on the film industry's new G-M-R-X classification of movies according to moral content.

Seeing a sexy movie has no particular effect on the relations of a boy and a girl on a date.

Films can bridge the generation gap.

The latter was illustrated by one boy who said that he saw "The Graduate" with his parents. The film concerns a college graduate who is seduced by his girl friend's mother.

"After we saw 'The Graduate,' my folks and I went home and had a long talk about morals," the boy said. "It was the first time we had been able to communicate on that level. I enjoyed the talk."

On the other hand, another boy said he and his father saw "The Graduate" separately. "My dad thought it was trash," the student reported.

Many parents seem to feel that "The Graduate" is stacked against their side of the well-known gap, since it shows Dustin Hoffman as a young man who is given everything but attention and understanding by his status-conscious parents. The film must have struck a responsive chord with today's youth; most of those in the seminars had seen it.

How do girls feel about going on dates to films that feature sex and nudity?

"It depends on who your date is," answered one attractive girl. "If it's a boy you know and like, it makes no difference. You can discuss the picture afterward with him, and it's no big deal. Seeing nude bodies doesn't mean anything, you can do that in art museums."

The students seemed unimpressed by the rash of new films concerning homosexuality and lesbianism. One girl commented: "I can't see why stars like Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton appear in pictures like that. Don't they care what their fans think?"

It is helpful for a film reporter to learn grass-roots opinions, as I did during two days of talks and seminars with seniors of Pasceack Valley and Pasceack Hill high schools. This was part of a pilot program financed by New Jersey and the federal government to bring speakers on various problems to the schools. The sessions are video-taped for later use.

Here is what I learned by returning to high school:

Today's students are surprisingly well-informed on the film industry's new G-M-R-X classification of movies according to moral content.

Seeing a sexy movie has no particular effect on the relations of a boy and a girl on a date.

Films can bridge the generation gap.

The latter was illustrated by one boy who said that he saw "The Graduate" with his parents. The film concerns a college graduate who is seduced by his girl friend's mother.

"After we saw 'The Graduate,' my folks and I went home and had a long talk about morals," the boy said. "It was the first time we had been able to communicate on that level. I enjoyed the talk."

On the other hand, another boy said he and his father saw "The Graduate" separately. "My dad thought it was trash," the student reported.

Many parents seem to feel that "The Graduate" is stacked against their side of the well-known gap, since it shows Dustin Hoffman as a young man who is given everything but attention and understanding by his status-conscious parents. The film must have struck a responsive chord with today's youth; most of those in the seminars had seen it.

How do girls feel about going on dates to films that feature sex and nudity?

"It depends on who your date is," answered one attractive girl. "If it's a boy you know and like, it makes no difference. You can discuss the picture afterward with him, and it's no big deal. Seeing nude bodies doesn't mean anything, you can do that in art museums."

The students seemed unimpressed by the rash of new films concerning homosexuality and lesbianism. One girl commented: "I can't see why stars like Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton appear in pictures like that. Don't they care what their fans think?"

Crossroads Comment...

Apropos of nothing in particular we started browsing through ancient files and wondering about the intention of some of the unexpanded notes found therein. For instance:

Politics is the craziest thing! Those who participate in it verbally slam-bang each other all over the place. Z-z-z-z goes the knife. Then afterwards all is forgiven and you see these fellows sipping coffee together or shooting the breeze at Third street and Ohio avenue.

Pretty buildings, windows and merchandise promotion are very nearly worthless without personal service to the customers.

On the other hand the attitudes of some customers can very nearly drive the clerks nuts or inspire them to be discourteous and indifferent.

Promotion, promotion, promotion! Business men must never downgrade the word. It's an effective tool to sell merchandise.

Fine food is not alone responsible for the success of a stag dinner or church breakfast. An aggressive telephone committee more often than not is responsible for the size of the attendance.

Then there's the story about the lazy Indians who sat around the campfire moaning because no meat was at hand for cooking.

This was intended for someone, but we forgot who or whom: If you are not honest with yourself, you can't be honest with others. Then listen to this, Every man cheats in his way, and he is only honest who is not discovered. Hum!

Excerpt from an old FBI bulletin: The most frustrating problem of local law enforcement is inadequate building space and insufficient equipment. It is extremely difficult to maintain public confidence, efficiency, and pride in a department which must operate from shabby physical facilities and with faulty outmoded equipment.

There are many reasons for nervous breakdowns, but one quickly recognized as a causative factor is the automobile driver who insists on turning his head and looking at a passenger beside him or one in the back seat to see how his remarks are registering.

Here's one Wilson Hicks overlooked in his description in Life magazine of the business boom over the viaduct on Sedalia's northside early in the century. Commenting about her customers, the madam remarked: "I depend for a living on the type of men who wouldn't want to be found dead in this joint."

Eighty miles an hour! A bill to legalize that speed on Missouri's Interstate highways has been introduced in the Legislature. Sounds fantastic but motorists are driving at that rate now, some consciously others unconsciously which is a good word. Kansas has 80 on its turnpike. Remember when 70 was considered too fast? Now it's considered a safe speed. Since we are in the 70's, it's fast enough for us.

De Gaulle Sabotages Nixon's Goals

By DREW PEARSON and JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — President Nixon had staked his whole European visit on the chance of successful talks with President De Gaulle, the head of state with whom he confers in detail this weekend.

It was the chief reason for his making the unprecedented tour of Europe by a President only one month after assuming office, when domestic policies were not yet firmed up.

However, Nixon had some encouragement from the "Great Man" himself. On January 11, even before he was inaugurated, Nixon sent a letter to De Gaulle declaring his willingness to consider the French position on world problems. De Gaulle replied on January 17 that he would be happy to exchange views in depth, even before this, De Gaulle had expressed some pride in Nixon's comeback. More than a year ago he had predicted this and seemed to consider the fulfillment of his prediction a personal triumph.

As a gesture to De Gaulle, the new President in his first White House reception junked the Johnson policy of using domestic champagne in favor of French champagne — much to the disgust of California and New York State wine growers.

In addition, Nixon had discreetly sidetracked Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who sent his Ambassador to the White House immediately after the inauguration to say that the Prime Minister would like to fly to Washington. During the Johnson administration, Wilson was the first foreign caller at the White House, while under Kennedy the first caller was British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan. But not under Nixon. His great goal was to patch up relations with De Gaulle.

And last week, shortly before Nixon's takeoff for Europe, the State Department and CIA advisers gave him one hour's briefing on De Gaulle's habits, eccentricities, health, political views, etc. It was the only extensive briefing Nixon received regarding any of the leaders he was to visit.

—British Puncture Balloon—

Then, suddenly, the British punctured Nixon's balloon. They leaked the story of how De Gaulle had approached them as late as Feb. 4 with a plan to dismantle NATO and reshuffle the economic and political power in Western Europe, dealing the United States completely out.

There was no question but that De Gaulle deliberately made the overture to the British at a time when he knew Nixon was coming to Europe. Nixon had written him on January 11, and by January 31 the State Department had taken diplomatic soundings with the chanceries of Europe regarding Nixon's visit. Despite this, De Gaulle called in the British Ambassador, Christopher Soames, for luncheon on February 4, to propound the new power structure for Europe. De Gaulle does not lunch with many Ambassadors. He's even seen very little of Sargent Shriver, prestigious American envoy in Paris.

There is no question also that the British, with equal deliberation, leaked the De Gaulle story on the eve of President Nixon's departure. When the French denied it, the British even showed newspapermen a transcript of the luncheon conversation, dictated by Ambassador Soames after his meeting with De Gaulle.

What all this means is that the President of France is extremely difficult to deal with and Nixon must adjust to this fact. Franklin D. Roosevelt found this out at Casablanca in 1943 and later described De Gaulle as fancying himself a cross between Joan of Arc and Clemenceau. Winston Churchill, referring to the symbol of the Free French, remarked that "The Cross of Lorraine is the greatest cross I have to bear."

Gen. Omar Bradley, liberator of Paris, deferred his advance into that city for one day while he waited for Gen. De Gaulle to ride at the head of the reentry procession. De Gaulle has acted as if he were the real liberator of France ever since. He has not changed, despite his friendly exchange of letters with Nixon.

—De Gaulle's Achievements—

The fact remains nonetheless that De Gaulle has done a lot of things for France. He brought an end to the war in Algeria which had been bleeding France white. He recognized that the cold war between West and East is over, which was one reason he pulled French troops out of NATO. NATO could have been made an important instrument for European cooperation, but De Gaulle pulled out the rug before this could happen.

The French President was inexcusably rude in urging a Free Quebec while a guest of the Canadian government. He has been overbearing and intolerant toward the United States, cut his own economic throat when he weakened the American dollar.

De Gaulle's popularity at home has skidded. He got a majority of one in the Chamber of Deputies at the last regular election. He did better in the emergency election after the student strikes last summer. But he is a long way from popular today.

In brief, De Gaulle is De Gaulle, and the President of the United States will have an interesting talk with him. But the chances are 100 to 1 he will not be able to do business with him. The No. 1 reason for Nixon's trip abroad has pretty much gone up in smoke.

Grenade is a Flop(?)

American soldiers face a resourceful foe in Vietnam.

A Fifth Marine Regiment combat patrol recently came across a crate of newly made cylinder grenades abandoned by retreating Viet Cong about 45 miles southwest of Da Nang. The grenades were sent to the regiment's home base for further inspection and analysis.

The ordnance experts were curious about the unusual appearance of the weapons, but the big surprise came when they discovered that the explosive charge was made from—water buffalo manure.

Fertilizer (or rather the ammonium nitrate in it) has long been known as an explosive substance, but this is the first known instance of the Communists using it for grenades.

The fertilizer makes a relatively low-grade explosive, but when combined with wax or other molding material and primed with a small amount of TNT or other high explosive, the manure packs a potent kick, the Marines report.

Now it can truly be said that the Viet Cong will stoop to anything.

An Unusual Coin--

Every effort is made to illustrate a coin of the widest general interest. This quarter-eagle and its companion piece, the half-eagle, lead in mail inquiries about gold pieces. The following letter is from an owner of one $2.50 gold piece and he makes a point often referred to by others.

DEAR MR. REED: I have an Indian-head $2.50 gold piece with a "D" mint mark. The coin has incuse type and is in extremely fine condition, but the mint mark is very dim. I would like to know if it could possibly be a "fake."—Bill McMahan, Wooster, Ohio (Wooster Daily Record).

DEAR BILL: Your gold piece is one of the most controversial pieces ever struck by the mint, if not the most unusual. The incuse or intaglio impression is equivalent to literally pushing the design down into the coin until the highest point in the device is just even or slightly below the over-all surface. The quarter-eagle and half-eagle of this series represent a complete departure from usual minting processes. It was originally thought that sinking the design would protect high points from early wear common to gold coins. This idea failed to consider wear on the general surface.

This type was adopted in 1908 during the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt, who strongly urged the omission of the motto In God We Trust because he did not favor a reference to the Deity on our currency. There were several objections to the coin as a possible germ carrier, but the chief complaint was its inability to stack.

As for your coin being a fake, I doubt this. It is not referred to in Don Taxay's book, "Counterfeit, Mistaken, and Unofficial U.S. Coins," and Taxay is considered an expert in this field.

"The Guide Book of United States Coins" lists the least of this series at $25 in fine condition to $52 uncirculated. The rarest of all dates is the 1911 with the mint letter "D." There were 56,680 pieces struck at the Denver mint and a specimen in fine condition lists at $235 to $475 uncirculated. However, a weak mint letter could reduce this value by 30 per cent.

MR. REED: I have a Fugio Sun Dial coin dated 1787 that is in fair condition. On the front side it has a sun dial and below this it has "Mind Your Business." The back has "We Are One" surrounded by the words United States. I would appreciate the history of this coin and its established value.—Mrs. William Kabat, Stoddard, Wis.

DEAR MRS. KABAT: Your Fugio cent is the first coin issued by authority of the United States. The word Fugio means "time flies" and it is reportedly one of Benjamin Franklin's many proverbs.

The 22nd edition of "A Guide Book of United States Coins" illustrates five of these coins with as many values. It explains the history and origin of the varieties.

When two experts sit down to play together for the first time they usually discuss their defensive signals. One of the more common defensive signals is to echo (play high, then low) to show an even number of cards in a suit while if you simply play normally you are showing an odd number.

If they are high-ranking experts they usually say that they only use these signals when there is a good reason to help their partner while if they want to fool declarer they discard any way they feel like.

West opened the queen of diamonds and continued the suit. How could he possibly tell that a club shift would beat the hand while a diamond continuation would allow declarer to bring home the bacon?

South ruffed the second diamond and led his king of trumps. East took his ace and led a third diamond. South ruffed high and led a trump to dummy's 10.

South was a near-expert who considered himself a master of cunning plays. He knew that he needed four spade tricks to make his contract since he had to park one of dummy's losing clubs on his fourth spade. He decided that if he studied awhile before playing a high spade from dummy, he might cause an opponent to think that his partner held the spade ace. He hesitated a while and then played dummy's king of spades. East played the three.

West was a real expert. He figured out just what was going through South's mind and played the eight of spades on that first spade lead. He echoed with the three on the second and South fell for it.

He played dummy's last spade, turned to West and remarked, "You gave yourself away when you echoed in spades." Then South played his 10 spot. "Maybe not," replied West, as he produced the jack!

A Woman's World

"Where do you get ideas?" is a question most writers answer with difficulty. They hesitate, then mumble something about keeping notes until things fall together and this explanation is usually met with outright disbelief.

I thought it might be a good idea to set down the process from beginning notes to completed article in order to give myself a believable answer as to whether or not there is some kind of formula. I talked with friends who write—both fiction and factual articles — and while everyone agreed there is a story or article form, the way individual writers get from start to finish seems always to be by a different route. The original idea might come from a conversation or be sparked by concern about a particular situation. Sometimes it pops up from nowhere.

For example, I read an advertisement for "silent partners." These are plastic inflatable replicas of a dog or a man and the idea is they will keep people from breaking into your car. The man, by the way, is a half-man. He's available from the waist up and his coat tails are guaranteed to tuck into the car seat.

Then I remembered writing—two years ago—about trying to attract the attention of a waitress in the Denver airport. She never saw me but had 20/20 vision for the men coming to the counter. At the time I suggested a woman might carry a cardboard cutout of John Wayne and set it on her lap when she wanted service in a restaurant. The fold-out John Wayne, added to the balloon-type "silent partner," seemed to give a good starting place for some remarks about funny things that happened to a woman traveling alone.

The next step, obviously, was to insert paper into typewriter and go to work with the idea. However, things didn't turn out the way I thought they would. A woman buying a plastic dog or a plastic half-man ($3.95 and $4.95 respectively) to give herself protection is not laughable. The dog doesn't look like a dog and the balloon man would fool only an intruder who had an I.Q. of 15 and was legally blind. In my opinion, the only purpose either might serve would be to lull a woman into a feeling of false security—and that definitely is NOT funny.

The next step was a simple one. I forgot about the whole thing.

But, while we're on the subject of false security, I might mention my being roundly criticized when I wrote that I was trying to teach my daughters not to live in fear and not to mistrust everyone. At the time I felt my critics misunderstood what I was trying to say. I was certainly NOT suggesting that women should act as if there are no dangers.

It is only common sense to realize that a woman alone can be a target for thieves and rapists. She must not put herself into a position of asking for trouble by driving in undesirable areas—especially at night—or by wandering alone on dark streets. Any woman inviting door-to-door salesmen into her house might be courting disaster. Children should be taught not to admit being alone in the house to telephone callers.

A police chief tells me the woman's best defense is still a police whistle and an old-fashioned hatpin—not a loaded gun or teargas container. At home, locked windows and doors, plus emergency numbers by the telephone, should be a rule.

Sound thinking and action—not hysteria or gimmicks—are her best protection.

Chronic Loss of Blood May Be Anemia Cause

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — For about 15 years I have had to control my iron-deficiency anemia by taking liver extract. Now I find this doesn't control it any more. What do you advise?

A — In true iron-deficiency anemia, the only drug needed is ferrous sulfate. When this doesn't control it, a chronic loss of blood must be suspected and, when found, corrected.

Q — I am a housewife. My hemoglobin level varies from 9 to 11. In addition to treatment for this, I am taking Indocin for my arthritis. Could this drug cause my low hemoglobin?

A — Indocin, like aspirin, may cause bleeding from the digestive tract and thus lower your hemoglobin level, which for women should be between 12 and 16.

Q — What foods are good for anemia? Is it true that port wine is good for anemia?

A — For most types of anemia, foods rich in iron are beneficial. These include liver, oysters, red meat, spinach and other greens and enriched breads and cereals. Alcoholic beverages are of no special value in the treating of anemia.

Q — What is pernicious anemia? Is there any cure for it?

A — This disease of unknown cause is insidious in its onset. It is characterized by weakness, soreness of the tongue and numbness or tingling in the fingers. There is not only a low hemoglobin level and a low red blood cell count but also typical abnormalities can be seen in the microscopic examination of the red cells. The disease cannot be cured but it can be controlled by taking vitamin B-12. It is essential that this treatment be continued without interruption for life.

Q — Would a person taking vitamin B-12 for pernicious anemia for a long time be likely to develop liver trouble?

A — No.

Q — My mother has aplastic anemia. What is the cause and what is the best treatment?

A — The underlying cause is failure of the bone marrow to produce red blood cells as fast as they wear out. A search must be made for the precipitating cause — exposure to ionizing radiation or various chemical agents, such as nitrogen mustard, chlorambucil, urethan, busulfan, benzol, mercaptopurine, chloramphenicol, gold salts, insecticides, trinitrotoluene (TNT), to name but a few. Often no such cause can be found.

Saturday Could Decide Race in the Big Eight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
That Big Eight Conference basketball race, which has been pulsating for weeks, could end Saturday—or it could be thrown into another tizzy.

Two games will decide whether the three-way scrap among Kansas, Colorado and Kansas State is finally settled, or will go into the final week of the season with a playoff still a good possibility.

Kansas' league-leading Jayhawks take their 9-3 Big Eight record to Boulder, Colo., to battle the second-place Buffaloes, who stand 8-4, in the conference's regionally-televized game Saturday afternoon.

Saturday night, third-place Kansas State, with a 7-4 record, invades Lincoln against still dangerous Nebraska, 2-8. The Cornhuskers last Monday night shocked Colorado, 79-65, and knocked the Buffs out of the Big Eight lead for the first time since mid-January.

If Kansas beats Colorado for a third straight time this season and Nebraska upends Kansas

State, the race is over. Kansas, with a 10-3 record in that event, could not be caught by Colorado, which would slump to 8-5, or Kansas State, which would be 7-5.

The Jayhawks could then use their season finale against K-State a week from Saturday as a warmup for the Midwest regional NCAA tournament at Manhattan, Kan., March 13-15. However, if Colorado beats Kansas, then the Big Eight title chase goes down to the final game—and it might not be resolved without a playoff.

Colorado finishes up a week from Saturday against Missouri (7-5) at Boulder.

Missouri also plays at Kansas State Monday night, so the Tigers—tied with Iowa State for fourth place—have a good deal to say about the outcome of the race, if it goes into the final week.

Kansas, naturally, hopes it can clinch things Saturday. The Jayhawks beat Colorado 60-55 in the Big Eight tournament in December and rapped the Buffs 80-70 at Lawrence, Kan., on Feb. 1.

The key would appear to be how well Kansas can contain Cliff Meely, Colorado's brilliant 6-foot-7 sophomore forward who leads the Big Eight in scoring with a 25-point average.

Reservoir Management Technique Is Tested

The Missouri Department of Conservation in cooperation with the U.S. Corps of Engineers has been testing a reservoir management technique for enhancing the survival of very young largemouth bass to fingerling size. Several years of research on various Missouri reservoirs have demonstrated the value of flooded, terrestrial shoreline vegetation as initial protective cover for small bass.

Therefore, on a trial basis, the water level in Pomme de Terre Reservoir was dropped two feet to 837 m.s.l. in mid-July of 1967 and held at that level as rainfall and run-off would allow. This permitted terrestrial vegetation to become established.

In mid-May of 1968, the water level was brought to 839 m.s.l., which flooded the partially established vegetation providing cover for the newly produced, young bass. Subsequent sampling in July, 1968, revealed an above average survival of young bass to fingerling size.

This technique, although only partially successful in establishing weedy cover, did offer enough protection to help the small bass as hoped. Most of the heavy growth of weeds produced on the shoreline in late summer was lost during the winter. The vegetation which provided cover for the young bass was that produced in the spring before the level was raised at bass spawning time. In addition, the low water level worked a hardship on some dock and property owners, especially during the summer months.

Department of Conservation and Corps personnel looked at the year-round results of the experiment and decided to try a modified plan in 1969. The water will be held two feet low, so far as is possible, from March 1, 1969, until May 15, 1969, in order to establish shoreline vegetation during the early spring growing season. Then beginning on May 15, 1969, the water level will be raised during the next few weeks to normal levels where it will be targeted for the remainder of the year and most of the following winter.

This way, the young bass will get the protection they need and the water level will be held at or above 839 m.s.l. during the major portion of the recreational season.

Individual Events Hold the Spotlight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — With Kansas a prohibitive favorite to capture its fourth straight team championship, the suspense shifts tonight to the individual events in the 41st Big Eight Conference indoor track and field meet in Municipal Auditorium.

The Jayhawks return 11 veterans from the indoor meet a year ago, and Coach Bob Timmons also has a raft of talented sophomores and freshmen.

Among Kansas' top newcomers are shot putter Karl Salb, two-miler Doug Smith and 1,000-yard run ace Jim Neihouse. Each has posted the best mark in his event indoors this season, with Salb's 65 feet, 5½ inches the best shot mark in conference history.

The Jayhawks also have veterans like miler Jim Ryun, quarter-miler Julio Meade, hurdler George Byers and long jumper Stan Whitley.

Ryun has run only twice since the Olympics and has been hampered of late with a foot injury. But he has posted a 4:06.2 mile indoors this season, and he is expected to run tonight, although his Big Eight indoor record of 3:58.8 does not appear to be in danger of toppling.

Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Colorado and Kansas State have the best marks in individual events going into the meet, while Nebraska and Kansas State appear to be the only teams with even remotely enough depth to give Kansas an argument for the team championship.

Oklahoma's outstanding individuals are sprinter and hurdler Wayne Long, who has the best time this season in the 60-yard dash, 6 seconds flat, and has matched Byers' time of 6.6 seconds in the low hurdles; and Cline Johnson, whose 1:09.6 is the best this year in the 600-yard run. Oklahoma also has posted the best mile relay time, 3:40.0.

Larry Curtis of Oklahoma State has done 16-6 in the pole vault twice this season, three inches better than the Big Eight meet record.

Colorado's event leader is Dan Peterson, who has churned a 1:52.4 in the half mile, while Kansas State's top man is high jumper Ray McGill, with a mark of 6-10 this indoor season.

Nebraska figures to score with Dan Morran, Garth Case and Greg Carberg in the middle distances. Clifton Forbes in the sprints and hurdlers Fred Nicholl and Joe Orduna.

Besides McGill, K-State contends with sprinter Charles Collins, hurdlers Luci Williams and Roger Timken, middle-distance ace Dave Peterson, half-miler Ken Swenson and quarter-miler Terry Holbrook.

Missouri is led by two-miler Kerry Hogan, half-miler Craig Endicott, sprinter Mel Gray and high jumper Ken Cooper.

Otterville, Northwest Drop Games

SMITHTON — Lincoln and Prairie Home won their quarter-final game over Otterville and Northwest Thursday night to advance to the semi-finals that will be played Friday night.

Lincoln's victory came behind the fine shooting of Eken who dropped in 22 big points for their 68-62 victory. Their win was decided in the second quarter when they outscored Otterville by 13 points. Otterville's high point man was Hardkey with 21.

Score by quarters:
Otterville ..... 11 6 23 22—62
Lincoln ..... 14 19 17 18—68
Individual scoring: Otterville — Gerke, 5; Hardkey, 21; Eklers, 12; Landrith, 21; Nan, 3. Lincoln — Eken, 22; McCain, 11; Hansen, 12; Stevens, 11; Rigby, 14; Bishop, 3.

In the quarter-final game between Prairie Home and Northwest, Prairie Home used a 16 point bulge in the second quarter to carry them to a 56-52 win. Odneal was high for Prairie Home with 28 while Shireman led Northwest with 13.

Friday nights semi-final games will see Jamestown go against LaMonte and Lincoln battle Prairie Home.

Score by quarters:
Prairie Home .. 5 26 12 13—56
Northwest .... 15 10 14 13—52
Individual scoring: Prairie Home — Wellenburger, 8; Stock, 4; Odneal, 28; Simmons, 12; Langlotz, 4. Northwest — Braton, 12; Shull, 12; Shireman, 13; J. Coffelt, 5; B. Coffelt, 6; Wagner, 4.

Pipers Are Still Near ABA Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Charlie Williams' hot hand has kept the Minnesota Pipers within close reach of the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division lead.

Williams fired in 40 points Thursday night as the Pipers battered the Houston Mavericks 136-102 and cut Miami's Eastern margin to one-half game. The Floridians, idle Thursday, take on the last place New York Nets tonight with a chance to pick up ground in the stretch race.

In the only other game on the ABA schedule, Denver topped Los Angeles 115-101.

Milwaukee upended Baltimore 126-111; Detroit nipped Philadelphia 126-123 and San Diego beat Cincinnati 127-112 in National Basketball Association play.

With Williams hitting consistently from the floor, the Pipers raced to a 65-60 halftime lead and then outscored the Mavericks 28-10 for a commanding 93-70 margin midway through the third period.

Steve Vacendak scored 25 points and Art Heyman added 15 for the Pipers.

Cage Fans See Upset In Tourney

CONCORDIA — Basketball fans saw two exciting games and one upset in the quarter finals of the Class "S" basketball regionals at St. Paul's here Thursday night.

Malta Bend edged by New Franklin 70-62 in a nip-and-tuck game until the final quarter.

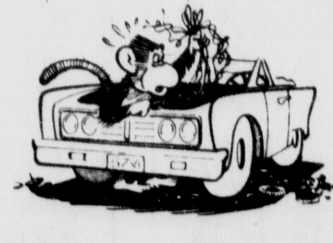

Hardin upset Orrick, seeded second in the tourney, 56-53, in the second game of the evening. In the final game Oak Grove raced by St. Paul's 79-62 after taking a substantial first quarter lead. This game was somewhat of a surprise since each team had played four games with only one defeat before facing each other.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Sweater Sewn in Jacket Kept Children Warmer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—To help them face the cold winters when my children were young I used to sew an old wool sweater inside each of their winter jackets. Instead of having to put on two separate garments when they went out the kids slipped on this one warmer, comfortable coat over their inside clothes. I used their old sweaters that might have been repaired or mended, removed the buttons and sewed together around the lining seam. More practical to put away and keep clean, too.—THERESE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have at least 100 beautiful post cards that I would like to display in my small living room if some of the girls can give me some ideas on how to do this.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—First I would like to tell M. D. to put a drop of machine oil on the stiff joints of her pinkie shears and they will work more loosely. For her second problem of marks on the kitchen floor left by chrome chairs, I suggest that she paint them with colorless nail polish after cleaning off all the dirt. Little plastic and rubber caps also can be bought for such chair legs and they keep the floor clean and free from chair scratches.

When wearing heavy elastic stockings I found that they would pull my girdle down. I solved this by adding two more garters to make six instead of four and my stockings and girdle both stay "put."

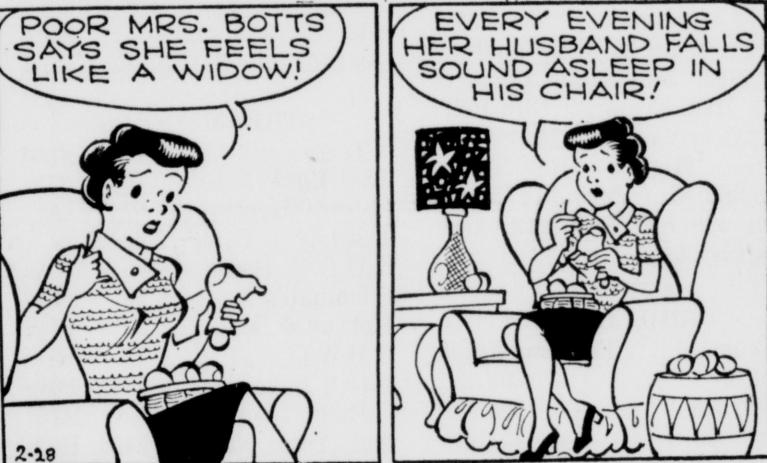

Some children's pajamas have ribbed neck bands that stretch out of shape because the children are not old enough to pull them off properly. To keep my little daughter's pajamas in place, and also to keep her warmer, I made a tiny slit in the neck ribbing, pulled a narrow, loose elastic through and sewed the ends together. Be sure to allow enough elastic so the head will go through easily. My daughter's old pajamas look like new.

Most of my rooms have several windows and they are not all the same length. During washing, the curtains would get mixed and I spent a lot of time matching them to each other and to the right windows. I now join each pair with a stitch at the top or bottom, or, if I want them left separate, I sew a little dot of colored thread on the wrong side, a different color for each pair. I have no more such trouble.—MRS. T. R.

Health Is Worth More

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Health still beats wealth, and that's why Tony Conigliaro and Rico Carty must be the happiest players in spring training.

Sure, Willie Mays and Carl Yastrzemski each signed for $125,000, and five St. Louis Cardinals are asking for some $575,000 in salaries. And, of course, major league players got their $5.45 million pension plan.

But no one can convince Conigliaro that any amount of money is worth a good left eye, and just try and persuade Carty that money can buy a good set of lungs.

Conigliaro, you remember, suffered a serious injury to his left eye when he was hit by a pitch in Aug. 1967, and he missed the rest of that season and all of 1968. His blossoming career with the Boston Red Sox appeared over.

But the 24-year-old slugging outfielder is back this season to try a comeback and he and the Red Sox were happy with his first workout Thursday.

"I feel great," Conigliaro said, although adding that the vision in the eye "will never be 100 per cent, but almost."

"He looked great for the first time out," commented Manager Dick Williams after watching Conigliaro hit five minutes. "He says he doesn't want to be treated as a special case. He told me he'd like to go through the same program as the other guys, so he will."

Carty, one of the few active players in the major leagues with a batting average over .300, is coming back to Atlanta following a year layoff after he was stricken by tuberculosis last spring.

The four-year veteran outfielder with a .305 career average also said he felt fine and proved it by hitting a few drives in batting practice.

"My timing is off a little, but otherwise I feel the same as always," he said. "I feel like I played all winter."

His big problem is weight, having gained 30 pounds from last spring, but he plans to cut down from 220 to 195.

Meanwhile, on the money front, Mays received a lesser degree of happiness when he agreed to sign today his fourth straight $125,000 contract for San Francisco, joining Boston's Yastrzemski in that bracket. Yaz signed Wednesday.

But the Cardinals are having money problems. They previously signed Tim McCarver and Vada Pinson for about $60,000 each, but the stakes are getting higher.

Among the stars who helped them to a second consecutive pennant last season, Bob Gibson reportedly is asking a raise from $90,000 to $125,000; Curt Flood $72,500 to $100,000; Lou Brock $70,000 to $100,000; Mike Shannon $42,500 to $70,000, and Dal Maxvill $37,500 to $55,000.

Orlando Cepeda wants the same reported $80,000 he got in 1968 and Julian Javier wants the same reported $45,000.

Several other clubs are having lesser problems—Montreal with Maury Wills and Rusty Staub, Baltimore with Boog Powell and Tom Phoebus, Los Angeles with Claude Osteen, Atlanta with Joe Torre, Pittsburgh with Bob Veale, Cincinnati with Tony Perez, Alex Johnson and Jack Fisher.

Also the Chicago White Sox with Tommy John, Tom McCraw and Wilbur Wood, Boston with Ray Culp, Jose Santiago, Dick Ellsworth and George Scott, and Minnesota with Dean Chance.

Among the big signers Thursday were Richie Allen and Johnny Callison of Philadelphia, Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs, Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota and Brooks Robinson and Dave McNally of Baltimore. Only Killebrew and Callison took cuts.

Pistons, Bucks Get Their Kicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lowly Milwaukee Bucks and Detroit Pistons got their kicks, but only after a couple of officials gave Earl Monroe and Billy Cunningham the boot.

The Bucks, the last-place club in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association, kicked up their heels again by beating first place Baltimore 126-117 Thursday night. It was their sixth consecutive victory, a club record helped along when Monroe was ejected from the game in the final period.

The Pistons, one rung above the Bucks, also had some unexpected help when Billy Cunningham was thrown out in the third period and Detroit went on to trip second place Philadelphia 126-123.

In the only other game host San Diego tumbled Cincinnati 127-112.

In the American Basketball Association, Minnesota crushed Houston 136-102 and Denver defeated Los Angeles 115-101.

Milwaukee, the first expansion team to win six straight games, built a 64-46 lead, but had to weather a final period Baltimore rally that ran out of steam midway through the quarter when Monroe was given the boot for disputing a call.

Flynn Robinson led the Bucks with 35 points while Kevin Loughery had 25 for the Bulls. Dave Bing had 30 points and 10 assists and Walt Bellamy added 27 points for Detroit, but added help came when Cunningham of the 76ers was ejected in the third period for arguing over a technical foul.

Cunningham had 21 points at the time and the 76ers missed him in the final period when they rallied from 10 points back to tie four times before bowing.

San Diego rolled to a 93-75 bulge and coasted as Don Kojis dropped in 32 points and John Block 24.

Follow Rules To Save a Marriage

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say a few words to the wife who decides to keep quiet and suffer in silence rather than break up her marriage with a nice but immature husband who indulges in an occasional affair.

A woman need not go completely to pieces merely because her husband behaves like a jackass from time to time. Many a good man has become victimized by a predatory female and doesn't know how to escape from her clutches. Here are a few rules for a wife who suspects her husband is having an affair:

- (1) Don't beg him to be faithful and don't cry or threaten him. This sort of noise goes in one ear and out the other.
- (2) Be mature, calm and steady. Let him know you have no intention of breaking up your marriage merely because he insists on acting like a fool.
- (3) Invite couples in, accept invitations. Stay in the social swim with family and friends.
- (4) Never utter one word against your husband to the children, to his mother, to your mother, or to anyone, for that matter. When he regains his sanity he'll appreciate your loyalty.

(5) Make love, not war. Remember, a man has only so much energy. What he expends at home cannot be expended elsewhere. — EXPERIENCED

Dear Experienced: Your counsel is sane, sensible and practical. It takes a strong woman to carry it off, however. Not all wives are equal to it.

Dear Ann Landers: For years I have been reading in etiquette books and most recently in your column, that a widow should be called Mrs. Joe Blow, not Mrs. Mary Blow. I protest in the name of common sense.

I live in a city where no one knew my husband. They knew me as the owner of a thriving beauty salon. If someone wanted to cancel or make an appointment after hours, they looked in the phone book for Mary Blow, not my husband Joe.

A socially prominent divorcee or widow has the privilege of being known as Mrs. Charlotte

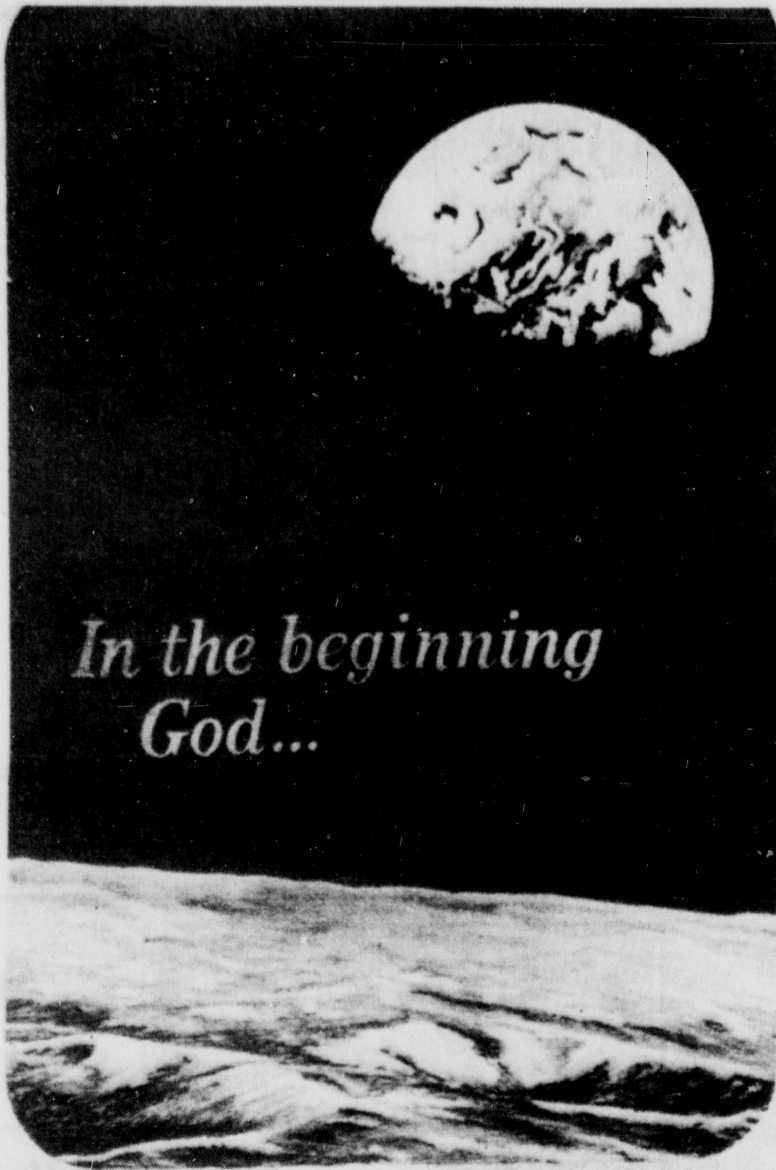

Ford Niarchos or Mrs. Mary Lasker. But heaven help a woman if she is a nobody.

I remember so well what Alice Roosevelt Longworth said years ago, "I'm me, not my dead husband's shadow. Please call me Alice Roosevelt Longworth." And they did. — ANONYMOUS MRS.

Dear Mrs.: I am not a slave to any one etiquette book. I've said repeatedly that good manners are based on good sense. If a widow or divorcee would prefer to called Mrs. Mary Blow, that should settle it.

Confidential to Why Do They Do It?: Drug users do it for a variety of reasons — disappointment, insecurity, to get out of the dumps, to combat fatigue, to escape boredom, to remove inhibitions, to induce sleep, to feel peppier, and alas, to experiment with something they've been hearing about so they can say they, too, have had the experience.

(c) 1969, Publishers-Hall Syndicate

Religious Theme

The commemorative stamp in honor of the Apollo 8 moon mission will include the words, "In the beginning God..." Postmaster General Boount announced Friday that the design is being changed to include the phrase in response to many requests. It will be the first U.S. stamp with religious wording since 1961. Astronaut William Anders, a crew member, spoke the words from Genesis while Apollo 8 orbited the moon last Christmas Eve. (UPI)

Real 'Activists' Seeking Wisdom

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "During their college years," says Ohio State University President Novice Fawcett, "the true activists rarely make headlines. They're far too occupied with assimilating knowledge, sharpening their analytical powers and building the kind of foundation which is necessary to wisdom."

Fawcett made the remarks while speaking before 480 honor students at OSU's 12th annual president's scholarship recognition dinner.

Sentenced To 30 Weekends in Jail

NEW YORK (AP) — A head teller who embezzled $108,000 from his bank, gambled it all away and now supports his family as a construction worker, was sentenced Thursday to 30 weekends in jail.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Jacob Mishler said he handed out the unusual sentence so that Walter C. Meadows, 34, could continue to support his wife and two children.

Meadows was head teller at the County Federal Savings and Loan Association in Rockville Centre on Long Island when he took the money, lost most of it at local race tracks and then blew the rest in Las Vegas trying to recoup his racing losses. He pleaded guilty.

KNOB NOSTER — The Knob Noster Ministerial Alliance is sponsoring Lenten Services at various churches.

The first service was held Feb. 23 at the Assembly of God Church with the Rev. Gene Petty, pastor, speaking on, "The Cross — Its Meaning."

Other services will be as follows:

Sunday, March 2, at 4 p. m. at the Presbyterian Church, the Missouri Valley College Choir, Marshall, will give a sacred concert; Sunday, March 9 at 7:30 p. m. at the United Methodist Church; Sunday March 16 at 7:30 p. m. at the Christian Church and Sunday, March 23 at 7 p. m. at the Baptist Church.

At 7 p. m. Sunday, March 30, services will be held at the LaMonte Baptist Church where a film, "The Resurrection," will be shown.

The Good Friday service from noon to 1:30 p. m. April 4 at the Whiteman Air Force Base Chapel will conclude the Lenten services.

The World Day of Prayer Service, sponsored by the women of various Knob Noster churches, will be at 7:30 p. m. Friday, March 7 at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The theme for the service will be "Growing Together," written by a group of women in Africa. Special music will be furnished by the Methodist Church, and the theme song will be "Kum Ba Yah" (Come by Here).

Letter of Praise Comes From Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks ago, during the crippling snowstorm that struck the city, patrolman Michael Rafferty got his picture in the paper for helping a woman through the slush on East 42nd Street.

He got letters from as far away as South Carolina and Chicago praising him for his gallantry. He also got one from Washington, D.C.

"As I looked at the pictures last week showing you helping a lady through high water at the curb, I could not help but think that thoughtful public servants like you convey a feeling of concern for others which sets an example for all," the letter read.

It was signed, "Sincerely, Richard Nixon."

Italian Students are Famous For Their Growing Militancy

ROME (AP) — President Nixon is only one of several targets on which the angry young men of Italy have been venting their frustrations.

Two years ago Italy's students were considered among the most docile in Western Europe. But since student protests last spring erupted into bloodshed, they have become the most militant.

A week has not gone by without police putting down a riot or students occupying a university. For many, the 1968 scholastic year was a loss.

The University of Rome, with 65,000 students, closed Saturday because of student occupations. This left most of the students free to riot Thursday in protest against Nixon's visit.

Not that President Nixon made any move to antagonize the students.

"He is just one more pretext to fight for reform of the social system, the education system which is full of cobwebs," expained Antonio Taddei, a mathematics student.

Other targets have ranged from the Venice Film Festival, which students broke up last autumn, to an expensive world championship boxing bout in San Remo. The protest is against "bourgeois" society, display of riches, and authority imposed by "a bunch of bums," as one student leader put it.

Even Italy's traditional leftists—the Communists and independent intellectuals—are ridiculed by advocates of student power.

The leftists, nevertheless, have made a strong attempt to infiltrate student ranks. New printed portraits of Lenin, for example, outnumbered the tattered Guevara posters during the last two anti-Nixon demonstrations.

L'Unita, the Communist party newspaper, devoted at least one page a day to news of student unrest, vandalism and other "cultural activities." At the same time, the Communists have injected their pet project of forcing Italy out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization into student chants and resolutions.

This aspect is causing growing concern at the Vatican. Its newspaper asserted Thursday that "the student flag is passing to otherhands which are aiming at the disintegration of the democratic state."

The Italian student movement has the same general objectives as student movements in France, Germany and the United States: the reform of the educational system which they consider out of date, and change in the structure of society.

To call attention to their demands, they seize on any occasion to demonstrate.

"In a way, Nixon is a welcome symbol in our struggle," said one student leader. "Our struggle against capitalistic society is being fought at all levels. It is obvious that we should prevent two capitalistic nations from forging closer bonds."

Ending Postal Patronage 'First Step' in Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says the administration's proposals for ending postal patronage are but a first step toward "undoing decades of abuse, and I mean decades, that have culminated in the conditions that we have here."

Political influence played a role even in routine promotions within local post offices, Blount said in an interview.

"It's been documented time and again about the connections of the people who had positions of responsibility around here," he said.

Turning to the 15 postal regional offices responsible for different sections of the country, Blount said "Political influence within these regions has been almost complete, and it's going to have to be changed."

President Nixon asked Congress this week to abolish political appointments of postmasters and rural carriers and set up a system of appointments based on merit.

"Reform of the postal system is long overdue," the President said in a message to Capitol Hill. "I consider it essential as a first step, that the congress remove the last vestiges of political patronage in the Post Office Department."

Blount expressed optimism that Congress will go along but added that "the thing that must be understood is that what we're talking about doing is not going to bring any overnight dramatic improvement in the whole postal service."

"If we were ever going to get to the business of improving the postal service we had to stop the political influence and I think that's the real significance of this decision."

Asked for comment about disclosures by The Associated Press of political and Mafia influence in contracts for a $40 million mail processing complex under construction in northern New Jersey, Blount replied:

"As you know, we also are studying that problem. It's one of the messes we inherited, or one of the problems we inherited. We are investigating it ourselves to see just what the situation is, to see if there are any decisions to be made at this time."

One firm with a subcontract on the New Jersey project has a man who has been publicly identified as a member of the Mafia on its payroll. Blount was asked if firms with links to organized crime should be allowed to bid on government contracts.

"Well, I don't know what the law is in this regard," he said. "If I were making the decision, I wouldn't (permit them to bid)."

The New Jersey project is being built by a private developer who will lease it to the Post Office Department for 30 years at an annual rent of $1,985,000.

Both the General Accounting Office and the General Services Administration, which builds most government buildings, have criticized the 10-year-old program under which the Post Office Department has leased hundreds of post offices across the country from private builders.

Blount acknowledged that the lease method is more expensive

Demonstrators in Rome Spoil Nixon's Reception

Nixon in Berlin

President Richard Nixon is shown as he was greeted on arrival in West Berlin by Mayor Klaus Schuetz (top photo). The president flew to Berlin from Bonn.

(UPI)

ROME (AP) — President Nixon took a tumultuous reception from West Berliners today and came on to Rome for a warm and cheering welcome. Then, as he began his talks with Italian officials, downtown Rome erupted into the worst rioting this city has had in years.

Anti-Nixon demonstrators in Berlin mustered little support, winding up with shouts from a few hundred persons and some snowballs, one of which hit the Nixon car.

In Rome it was a story of contrasts. Reflecting the warmth of his reception at the airport, a crowd halted his motorcade at one point on the route into the city. Nixon got out of his limousine, plunged into the crowd—and was hoisted onto shoulders. The President waved his arms in delight.

Later, with the President safely at the Quirinal Palace, things were different.

Thousands of persons shouting "Nixon go home," and chanting "Mao, Mao, Mao Tse-tung" clashed with stones and staves against club-wielding police amid clouds of tear gas.

Police battled the demonstrators down main avenues and through crowded side streets in the very heart of the city—just blocks from the palace.

Police cars raced through the battle area and the night was pierced by ambulance sirens as well as the shouts and curses of demonstrators. At the Trevi Fountain demonstrators rolled over a car and set it afire. Tourists in the area fled in terror.

The crowd, made of workingmen and students, took to the streets in defiance of a police ban on demonstrations.

Two army trucks with sirens screaming tried to block the march but the demonstrators kept moving.

Blocks away, at the main campus of student-occupied Rome University, rebellious students tried to break past police barriers to join the anti-Nixon rally.

Club-wielding police drove them back and students replied by hurling paving stones ripped up from the streets.

Several blocks from the Quirinal Palace of the Italian president 200 soldiers in armored trucks stopped the marchers.

The demonstrators sat down on the street and continued shouting "Nixon go home!"

Nixon flew to the Italian capital after hundreds of thousands of West Berliners roared approval when the President endorsed the U.S. commitment to defend that isolated sector. There were also some jeers from students, and one snowball hit his car.

Paraphrasing President John F. Kennedy's 1963 "Ich bin ein Berliner" (I am a Berliner) speech, Nixon declared:

"In the sense that the people of Berlin stand for freedom and peace, all the people of the world who want freedom are truly Berliners."

"Remember, we are always with you."

About 7,000 Berlin policemen stood vigil during Nixon's swing through West Berlin.

As the procession passed the bombed-out Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church, now a peace monument, a group of students shouted "Sieg heil!" and other uncomplimentary remarks.

They threw nail-studded snowballs at police and tossed paint into the street. But it was a weak effort by 200 or 300 youths and other Berliners scuffled with them. Police arrested about 22 persons.

An American source said a snowball hit the driver's window of the President's special car.

In Rome, Nixon won a pledge of support from Italian President Giuseppe Saragat for his plan to negotiate with the Soviet government.

In a welcoming speech at the airport, Italy's first Socialist president called Nixon's planned talks with Moscow "a great dialogue between East and West."

Saragat, in an apparent shot at French President Charles de Gaulle's policy of exclusion toward Britain and other nations, warned that Europe would be able to make a decisive contribution to the peace dialogue only if it "finds through unity

Viet Cong Offensive Eases Off

SAIGON (AP) — The new enemy offensive against Saigon eased today, but U.S. intelligence officers thought there would be more. Elsewhere across South Vietnam, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese made more rocket and mortar attacks on some 50 towns and allied bases.

It was the fifth day of the enemy's spring offensive and their biggest effort in nine months.

"The over-all intensity was less than the previous night," an American communique said. "No significant enemy ground probes were reported."

This was in sharp contrast to Wednesday, when U.S. and South Vietnamese troops, backed up by bomb and napalm spewing aircraft, repelled attacks by more than 1,000 enemy soldiers on bases 15 to 20 miles north of Saigon.

Working out from Bien Hoa, one of the largest air bases in Vietnam, allied troops swept the blasted villages and fields outside the base after day-long fighting and encountered no meaningful resistance, a spokesman said.

Officers from the 1st Air Cavalry Division guarding the Cambodian border north of Saigon admitted that three regiments of the North Vietnamese 5th Division slipped past their defenses to fight around Bien Hoa and neighboring bases.

U.S. military analysts said the second phase of what they see as a month-long enemy offensive will be directed at the capital and other population centers.

Casualty figures from the latest offensive pushed the number of Americans killed since the start of the Paris peace talks last May to more than 5,000. At least 300 Americans are believed to have died in the fighting since Sunday.

Defense Rests Its Case In Shaw's Trial

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The defense rested its case today after Clay Shaw took the stand to tell the jury he never knew Lee Harvey Oswald or David W. Ferrie and certainly never conspired with them to murder President John F. Kennedy.

Cross-examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. James L. Alcock lasted about an hour, and the state said it would present rebuttal witnesses this afternoon.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison, who charged Shaw with conspiring to kill President Kennedy in 1963, was not in the courtroom during the questioning today. He has made only rare appearances at the six-week-old trial.

Apollo 9 Flight Is Postponed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency today postponed the Apollo 9 launching three days, from Friday until Monday, because of colds suffered by the three astronauts who are to fly the 10-day earth orbit mission.

The launch was reset for 11 a.m. EST Monday. The decision was made after doctors examined the three astronauts, Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and David R. Scott and civilian Russell L. Schweickart.

The trio came down with sore throats and stuffy noses Wednesday. There was concern at the time that the launching might have to be delayed anywhere from one to five days because of the illnesses.

The astronauts took medicine, drank plenty of liquids and rested 12 hours Wednesday night.

They awoke in "good spirits" today and underwent a 45-minute medical exam.

After the thorough throat and nasal exam, the doctors pronounced the pilots improved but felt it wise to delay the flight to give them plenty of time to recover and to rest for what has been termed the most complex man in space flight ever attempted.

The countdown on the giant Saturn 5 rocket and spacecraft, which had progressed on schedule, was to continue down to nine hours before the original planned liftoff and then will be held until Monday.

It was the first time after 18 U.S. man-in-space flights that a launching had been delayed by illness. Many launchings have been postponed by technical and mechanical problems.

Exhaustion as much as the colds was a factor.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, chief astronaut physician, reported Wednesday that McDivitt, Scott and Schweickart were physically exhausted from the training for the flight, termed the most complex manned mission ever attempted.

Berry said he wanted the men to be physically and mentally ready for the journey in which they are to test the lunar module (LEM), the bug-like vehicle designed to land two men on the moon. Schweickart plans a two-hour space walk.

McDivitt, the Apollo 9 commander, was the first to report a sore throat and nasal congestion early Wednesday. Scott and Schweickart checked in with the same symptoms later, but Berry did not believe they caught the colds from McDivitt but that all three got them from the same source.

McDivitt and Scott felt well enough in the afternoon to rehearse in a spacecraft trainer. But Schweickart remained in the crew quarters.

All three took decongestants.

State Gas Tax Increase With Late Senate Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A flat 2-cent increase in Missouri's 5-cent gasoline tax was today by Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

A similar proposal is pending in the House.

The gas tax bill was one of 54 bills and two constitutional amendments that poured in as the senate reached the deadline for introducing bills. The total number of bills reached 391, plus 17 proposed constitutional amendments.

Two years ago there were 410 bills. A few more are expected to trickle in within the next few weeks if the authors can get the Senate's permission.

Many of the last minute bills today were repeaters or duplicates of those already in the House, such as extending the nonpartisan court plan to St. Louis County, setting up a system of scenic riverways, raising the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour, allowing school buses to transport private and parochial students and providing state scholarships for needy students.

Among the new ideas was a bill to increase the maximum number of hours a woman may work legally from 9 to 12 hours a day but on not more than 30 days a year.

Other new ones would: Require reclamation of strip mining areas.

Regulate medical laboratories. Establish a state plumbing code.

Waive the one-week waiting period and increase workmen's compensation benefits.

Allow the state comptroller to hold up the funds of any state agency not complying with the law.

Make it illegal to use any state funds to influence an election.

Require permits for use of deep wells for waste disposal. Increase basic nursing home payments from $125 to $180 a month at an estimated cost of $5 million the first full year.

Let the state administrative service agency compile and publish annual reports of all state agencies.

Set up a state commission to regulate cemeteries.

Repeal the intangible property tax.

Allow school levies to be raised by a simple majority vote.

Repeal the law requiring motorcyclists to wear protective headgear.

Make the state a self insurer to protect officials of the Department of Corrections and the Division of Mental Diseases against multi-million dollar damage suits.

Transfer control of motor vehicle inspection from the Highway Patrol to the Director of Revenue.

Set up a civilian board to review St. Louis Police practices. Wednesday the House was stumped when a seven-page substitute was offered for a Sunday liquor sale bill.

The bill was laid over and Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, co-sponsor, said he hoped anyone else offering substitutes in such a fashion would make their plans known well ahead of time.

Morton's Selection Ends Party Hassle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has solved his first major intraparty problem by naming Maryland Congressman Rogers C.B. Morton as GOP national chairman and relegating former campaign advisor Murray Chotiner to a nonpublic role.

Morton told a news conference Wednesday he decided to take the job after he and Chotiner had "agreed that his (Chotiner's) experience and capacities could be better utilized elsewhere" than on the committee.

Chotiner managed Nixon's campaigns until 1956 when a Senate investigating committee called him on the carpet for alleged influence peddling.

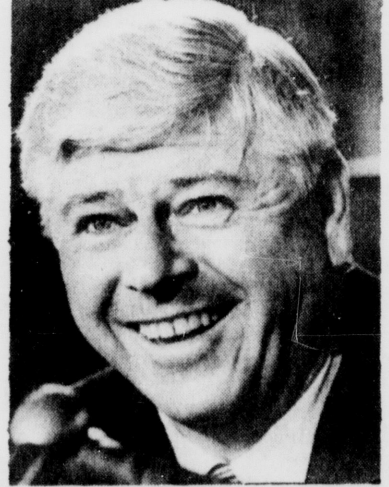

He had predicted he would operate the committee as executive director while the new chairman would devote his time primarily to making speeches. Morton denied making any "stipulations" or imposing "restrictions" on his acceptance of the Chairmanship, succeeding Ray Bliss.

That wasn't quite the way many high ranking Republicans heard it.

Their version was this: President Nixon had told Chotiner he wanted him to be the executive director of the committee. But Morton balked at having the Los Angeles lawyer run the show while he served as front man.

Presidential assistants assured Morton, who was floor

Rep. Roger Morton

manager for Nixon at the Miami Beach, Fla., nominating convention, that he wouldn't have to take Chotiner if he took the chairmanship.

But Morton insisted he wanted direct word from Nixon that Chotiner would not be on the committee.

2.4 Million Cars Called Back

DETROIT (AP) — The deaths of four persons by asphyxiation in their cars led to a General Motors recall of 2.4 million vehicles—part of the largest recall in auto industry history—a corporation spokesman said Wednesday.

Owners were asked to return the cars for correction of faults which could lead to seepage of exhaust fumes into passenger space. At the same time, another 2.5 million GM cars and trucks were recalled for the checking of possible carburetor defects.

Just mailing the notifications to the 4.9 million affected customers will cost about $2 million, GM said.

The exhaust problem first came to light when Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunt and their niece, Susan Koehler, were found dead in their 1968 Chevrolet Impala near Heber City, Utah, last July. Several days later, Mrs. Charles Dunaway was found asphyxiated in a 1966 Impala near Baton Rouge, La.

A spokesman said GM investigators discovered the Hunt car had been involved in an accident causing extensive damage to the front of the car's undercarriage as well as the front of the exhaust system. The car was driven 800 miles the next day without repair to the damaged exhaust system, GM said.

But in the case involving Mrs. Dunaway, exhaust fumes apparently leaked from a rusty tail pipe through one of several openings in the trunk of the car and then into the passenger compartment, the firm said.

A spokesman said no litigation currently is pending in either of the two death cases although two suits have been filed in two of about 30 complaints of dizziness and drowsiness, allegedly as a result of exhaust fumes.

The spokesman said there had been 48 complaints of failure of a plastic carburetor part which could result in sticking accelerators and cars going out of control. One minor accident has been reported as a result of such failure, the firm said.

The recall campaign covers Chevrolets of Biscayne, Bel Air, Impala, and Caprice models from 1965 through 1968 for correction of possible exhaust tube leakage, and 1968 and 1969 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks, Cadillacs and GMC trucks with four barrel Quadra-Jet carburetors for replacement of a plastic cam.

Ike Doing Well

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army doctors reported today that the physical course of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower "continues satisfactorily considering his age, past medical history and the fact that he is still in the critical postoperative period."

The nation's governors showed both alarm and willingness to take a hard line toward student disorders on university campuses. The White House promised some comments from Vice President Agnew on the subject. Shown

Weight in the Protests

A small but terse headline on an inside page had more significance than might have been attributed to it by the casual reader:

"Spainhower Will Drop His Bill."

This "ducking" maneuver referred to the ill-conceived school reorganization bill introduced by the representative from Saline county in the General Assembly on recommendation of the School District Reorganization Commission.

Although Mr. Spainhower intends to substitute a less stringent bill, opposition to the initial one was so intense weeks before and during a committee hearing in Jefferson City that it was abandoned.

This action is reassurance of what the folks back home can do when they get riled up about legislation that might slip through the assembly chambers without sufficient analysis by grass roots taxpayers.

The right to know played a forceful part in putting the skids under the reorganization plan as originally outlined. State-wide protests on short notice occurred in which Central Missourians joined vociferously at numerous area meetings and in letters to the newspapers.

A major criticism of the abandoned plan was that it did not permit local areas to work out their own reorganization plans. The new proposal if enacted into law would establish districts to provide schooling from kindergarten through grade 12. Some do not now offer high school education and students have to be transported to another district.

The new proposal should be studied by school patrons just as avidly as the one which was abandoned in order to assure that no wrinkles exist which later could be difficult to iron out once adopted into law.

The notion that opposition to proposed legislation is difficult to sustain once bills are tossed into the General Assembly hopper, is a false premise. Abandonment of the school reorganization bill as initially recommended is a prime case of public disapproval functioning effectually by foresight rather than futilely by hindsight.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

West Berlin Courageous, Discouraged

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is visiting a city undaunted by the fact that it is surrounded by 400,000 Russian and East German troops, but discouraged by the exodus of its young people, the slow-down of its industry, and the absorption of the United States with Vietnam.

The week after the invasion of Czechoslovakia last summer you could buy West Berlin real estate for 10 per cent less than the week before.

In this respect President Nixon's visit will be healthy. West Berlin needs a psychological shot in the arm. This is one reason why the West German presidential elections were scheduled to take place in West Berlin on March 5. It was to highlight the importance of Berlin and encourage its residents.

When I interviewed West Berlin's quiet, hard-working Mayor Klaus Schutz shortly after the Czech crisis last summer, he was frank about Berlin's problems, a bit worried about the present, but optimistic about the long-range future.

"Berlin is still the chief city of Germany," he emphasized. "And when Germans take a holiday they all want to come to Berlin."

The man who has had the greatest faith in Berlin and who will help host President Nixon is Axel Springer, the big German publisher who is sometimes called "Mr. Berlin." He has been the No. 1 champion of that beleaguered city. In fact he moved the headquarters of his publishing empire to West Berlin and built a magnificent building housing the Axel Springer Enterprises almost on top of the Berlin Wall in order to demonstrate his faith in the city.

"This is a great city," Springer told me. "It is also a symbolic city. I like it. That is why I moved my headquarters from Hamburg here."

—The Berlin Wall—

From Springer's office on the 19th floor we looked down on the famous Berlin Wall, separating into two parts a city which once dominated Northern Europe.

"There is my wall, and there is Mr. Ulbricht's wall," said Herr Springer, pointing to the long line of masonry below. "In some places we share the same wall."

Below was not a mere wall, but a series of fortifications as intricate as any prepared by the feudal barons of old, consisting of the wall itself with a revolving pipe on top which is hard for escapees to grip; an anti-tank moat; a plowed strip underlain with hidden land mines; a series of "dragon teeth" of twisted metal to stop any tank or jeep; a space in which German police dogs run back and forth on a steel wire leash, and finally a huge mesh wire fence with barbed wire on top.

Such is the barricade between East and West which President Nixon will inspect.

Mr. Springer, though the No. 1 civilian champion of beleaguered Berlin, is a constant target of such liberal journalistic needlers as Der Spiegel and of West Berlin students. Der Spiegel is published in the Springer printing plant, but keeps up the constant drumfire of criticism against its landlord.

Ironically, it was against Springer that the first student revolt started last year, later spreading to Paris, Warsaw, Belgrade, Columbia and many universities of the United States. West Berlin students occupied the lower floor of the Springer building, paralyzed delivery trucks and disrupted newspaper publication.

—Underground Student Movement—

There appeared to be an underground student link from Rudi Dutschke, the left-wing German student hospitalized after the Berlin riots, to Danny Cohn-Bendit, the boy who sparked the Paris riots, to Mark Rudd, head of the Students for a Democratic Society

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Sen. Edward Kennedy is trying to operate as Democratic whip much as he did as a well-known but back bench senator. He is using his weight and influence selectively in support of what he deems the most significant issue positions.

At root the whip's post, second in command to majority leader Mike Mansfield's, is a nose-counting job. But Kennedy is opposed to compelling Democratic senators to put their noses on the line every time an issue arises which by any stretch could appear to involve the party's interests.

His first real commitment of the new season was to the fight to restore $100,000 chopped from the year's working funds for Sen. George McGovern's Special Committee on Nutrition and Human Need by the Senate Rules Committee. Characteristically, Kennedy poured his full energies into the effort.

As indicated, there is nothing fundamentally new in his approach. The Massachusetts senator is not a battler for hopeless causes, is not interested in mere verbal posturing on issues, scorns the idea of supporting all doctrinaire liberal proposals without regard to their individual merit.

Sooner or later this pragmatic view of his new function is going to get Kennedy into fresh trouble with the doctrinaire dissidents who, as other Washington observers have enterprisingly discovered, are already taking an "all-or-nothing" attitude toward party leaders on the question of reform.

Judging from their behavior, these dissidents of the Democratic left, like their predecessors in recent decades, prize above all the ardent public utterance, the symbol of pure dedication to principle rather than the achievement of attainable goals, the indiscriminate commitment to doctrinaire partisanship.

How this works in practice can be seen from an episode involved in the January fight Kennedy won over Sen. Russell Long for the whip's job. It centered on an unsuccessful effort by Kennedy men to gain Sen. Eugene McCarthy's vote.

At one point, a McCarthy man, seeking to justify his senator's reluctance to back Kennedy, blurted:

"Would Kennedy make a speech this afternoon supporting the reform of the Democratic party?"

Implicit was the suggestion Kennedy might not be as eager for reform as the self-styled "reformers" would wish. The fact is that on this issue his commitment is total and has been firmly expressed both publicly and privately.

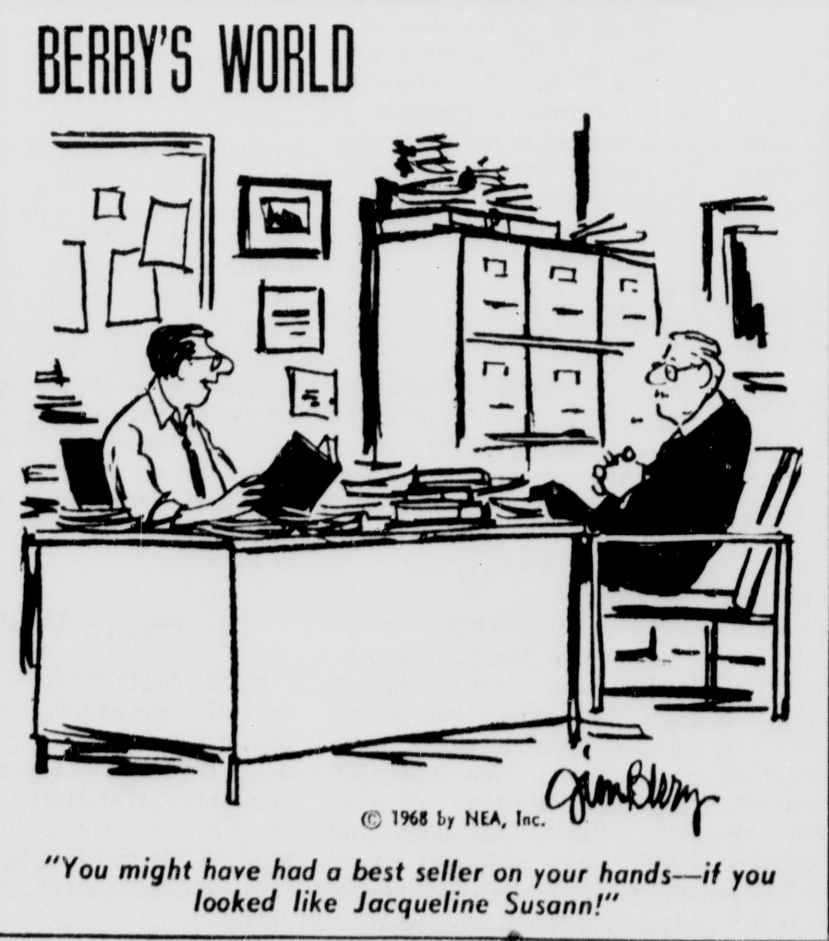

In contrast, McCarthy, in whose name so many doctrinaires have shouted for reform, has done and said virtually nothing to advance this cause since he lost the presidential nomination last August.

Prior to that, his and his supporters' cries for reform, uttered in the heat of battle, were properly weighed as self-serving, since their purpose was less the sober consideration of long-range change than the immediate convertibility of party changes into delegate votes for McCarthy at Chicago.

Dissidents with the "show-it-on-the-sleeve" approach to politics are bound, in time anyway, to be more or less continuously unhappy with Ted Kennedy as a Senate leader. He will be chided as timid, as lacking commitment, as being unwilling to stand up and be counted (or have his Democratic Senate colleagues counted) on the issues the doctrinaire liberals see as paramount.

Kennedy is unlikely to be bothered greatly. He sees himself as a complete activist, working for change within realizable limits. An "establishment" man, he is not afraid to challenge it when gains promise to be real.

He is not captivated by the wispy tissue of "pure faith" positions, nor with the idea of dying five times a week for lost causes. His aim is simply to live to get things done.

The poor experts have been taking a beating all week. They have been going down at contracts that poorer players might make.

Today an expert makes a contract. He isn't going to make the best play from a standpoint of strict mathematics but from the standpoint of practical, winning bridge.

Expert South took quite a chance when he opened with one spade. Some experts just hate to open with two bids. If West had passed the hand would have played at one spade but West was a bidder and stuck in a take-out double.

North passed, just as he would have if West had passed. East bid two diamonds and hoped that nothing too bad would happen to him. South jumped to four spades and hoped to find a trick somewhere in his partner's hand.

West opened the queen of hearts. South won and counted 10 easy tricks provided he could escape with the loss of only one trump. Then he laid down his ace of spades. He hoped to drop the king or the 10 but all he collected was the three and four. Then he entered dummy with king of clubs and led dummy's last spade. East played the seven and the time to separate the men from the boys had arrived.

South thought awhile. You have nothing to lose at a time like this by thinking. Then South played the eight of trumps. West showed out and South spread his hand conceding a trump, a diamond and a club.

Why did South make that play? He must have known that a suit will break 3-2 68 per cent of the time but South had listened to the bidding. West had made a vulnerable take-out double. The bid would have been dangerous enough if West held a singleton spade or the doubton king and almost suicidal if West had held king-10-small or 10-small in spades. Therefore South played West for the singleton and was correct.

They Made Progress

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON, D.C. — W. Averell Harriman, long time diplomatic trouble-shooter, and former head of the U.S. delegation to the Vietnam peace talks in Paris said, "We did make some progress. At least we got the delegates to decide on the shape of the table." The Governor (as he wishes to be called) said it was the most frustrating experience he has ever had, and no one could have had a better partner than Cy Vance: "He worked two shifts a day to my one," said the governor.

The United States maintains its two objectives in Paris, Mr. Harriman said: One, to keep sufficient military force to prevent North Vietnam from taking over South Vietnam by force and to remove enemy forces from that country; Two, to let the people of South Vietnam decide their own government without interference from the United States, Hanoi or any other government.

Governor Harriman made these statements in a speech before a recent luncheon meeting of the National Press Club. He added that the Soviet Union has been very helpful in regard to the Vietnam situation and wants to see the fighting stopped. Harriman said: "Some agreement must be made with the North Vietnamese, which are fiercely nationalistic and communistic. They want to be free from Peking and the Soviet Union. They say they want to re-unify their country."

Harriman thinks that there is a great deal of difference between North and South Vietnam, ethnically and religiously. "South Vietnam has been independent of the North for many years," he said.

Lodge and his team have a tough assignment including mutual withdrawal of troops, return of prisoners of war, reduction of violence and serious de-escalation, said the governor, and "I wish them well."

The experienced trouble-shooter chose not to speak of the past. "Richard Nixon is our President now and I will help him all I can on Vietnam," he said. "I intend to stay in Washington and will continue to serve my country whenever called upon to do so."

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Modern Dentistry Holds Many Surprises

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I haven't gone to the dentist for at least 10 years and now I'm afraid to go because he might tell me that all my teeth have to come out. But he's got me now. I broke a tooth and the jagged edge is cutting my tongue. What shall I do? — Israel G.

ANSWER: Reminds me of the man with a broken tooth who came to the dentist complaining that the jagged edge was cutting his tongue. When he sat in the chair, the dentist asked if he wanted to tooth extracted. "Oh, no," he replied. "I only want you to bandage my tongue."

Forgive the levity, Israel G. and go to the dentist. Don't be afraid. You have a pleasant surprise awaiting you. Dentistry has changed so much in these last 10 years, you'll feel more like Rip Van Winkle than Israel G.

High-speed, air turbine, water-cooled drills have produced a tremendous change in dentistry. They don't rattle your brains; they cool the tooth while they cut and cut rapidly with slightest pressure; and cavity preparations take much less time and effort.

Disposable needles and syringes for "novocain" injections are now used once and thrown away, thus eliminating possible needle infection and reducing pain. No more "dum dum" needles.

Gum treatment and root canal therapy have developed into specialties and are more scientific and more successful. As a result gums can be healthier and more teeth can be saved.

X-ray machines are safer, more accurate, and take better pictures. Toothlike facings on bridges and crowns are more sanitary and last longer because of the development of a process of baking porcelain on gold.

Yes, you're in for a treat, Rip. Your dentist may drill and fill your teeth to background sounds of Beethoven's 6th and you can relax on his new downy-soft-dental-ease chair. You might even be lulled to sleep — or even hypnotized!

Simple cancer detection techniques called cytology have been developed and are widely used by dentists. And other oral diseases and their relationship to one's general health are better understood and treated.

O.K. I admit that dentists still drill 'em and fill 'em. But soon this will change, too. Go back to sleep for another 10 years, Rip, and when you awaken this time you may find that tooth decay has disappeared, teeth won't have to be extracted, gum troubles have been eliminated, and everyone will have perfect teeth.

Well . . . maybe not perfect.

Post-War Problem

Addressing a Chamber of Commerce dinner in Washington, Missouri, recently Senator Thomas Eagleton noted: "When the industries and businesses that fill military orders are the largest producers of goods and services in the United States today . . . when their activities pour about 45 billion dollars into over 5,000 cities and towns . . . when they employ more than one American worker out of ten — the economic momentum of war production will not easily be deflected" to meet domestic needs.

"Call it the 'military-industrial complex' if you will," said Eagleton, "but remember that you are talking not about a coterie of skulking warmongers, but about a sizable portion of the American population" who have a vested interest in defense production.

Eagleton expressed confidence that the nation could avoid a post-war economic slump, but asked, "Do we have the ability and foresight not only to keep our great economic engine running, but to redirect it to serve the urgent needs of peace?"

Expressing the fear that "super new defense systems will be ripped off the Pentagon drawing boards and taken to the Congressional Defense and Appropriations Committees before the first troop ship reaches San Francisco," Eagleton said that nobody but "an aroused American public" could make an effective counter-claim for public funds.

Dialed 'Graffiti'

Switchboard operators at the Democratic National Committee in Washington couldn't understand why there was such a jam-up of calls on one telephone line, reports Western Electric Co. There were, after all, 19 other lines into the party headquarters.

Then someone gave them the word. The number in question—333-8768—translated on the dial into: "FED UP 68."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Frostless Windshield
By Using Old Sheet

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Do you hate to scrape frost from your car's windshield and rear glass? My husband and I do. We take a piece of an old sheet or a drape that is wide enough to cover the glass in question and long enough to reach to both car doors. We cover the glass and close the ends in the door. Next morning, merely remove the cloth and you have clean glass without freezing yourself to get it clean. Our children read the Pointers just as we both do—thank you so much.—RUBY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am at a loss to know what to do with shirts of my husband's that are too short-tailed. He refuses to wear them and I wonder if there is a way to add an extension. Does one choose material of the same type and color? He said that if I did this they had better stay in because he would not wear one that slips out and shows.—MRS. R. M.

DEAR POLLY—After cleaning a rug and it is still wet, one often has to walk across it to get from one room to another. I found a safe way which keeps dirt off a damp carpet. Put plastic bags over your feet, fasten them on with rubber bands. You can go from one room to another without harming your cleaning job.—SHIRLEY

DEAR POLLY—I solved the problem of holding heat downstairs and not letting it flow upstairs when not needed. I hang a sheet of heavy plastic at the top of the steps. It is clear and lets the light through. When I want to get the upstairs warmer, I lift this plastic sheet and lay it across the banister at the top of the stairs. I have found that this helps keep the summer heat upstairs and the downstairs stays cooler.—MRS. L.

DEAR POLLY—Before icing an angel cake with seven-minute frosting, cut the cake into serving pieces, then frost and decorate to your liking. Serving can be done very easily with the use of a cake server and running a sharp-pointed knife through the frosting to the sliced cake. The cake looks nice when whole on the table and there is far less mess in serving it.—THE WORRY WART

La Bella Gina Digs Archeology

Members of an archeological expedition planning to spend three months digging in the Sudan may have a hard time keeping their minds on ruins with a structure like Gina Lollobrigida's along. She is going as the expedition's official photographer.

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Surprise. Deep within the curvy exterior of Gina Lollobrigida lurks the heart of a scientist. Just goes to show you that you can't tell a glamor girl by her cover.

Prof. Lollobrigida will shortly depart on an archaeological expedition. She plans to spend three months with the group as they dig in the Sudan, looking for a lost city of gold.

Gina's function is two-fold. She is cofinancier of the expedition—her partner is a Russian-born Italian prince. She is also the official photographer.

"Photography is my hobby," she says. "I was trained as a painter, but when I became an actress, I had no time to paint. Photography is an artistic substitute."

The goal of the expedition is scientific. Of course, if they also happen to find a few golden baubles, well and good. The Sudanese government has established ground rules for digging in their turf—anything that is found works on a one-for-you-and-one-for-me basis. So Gina hopes to add a few ancient geegaws to her collection.

"I am very interested in archaeology," she says. "In my villa, I have some fine pieces—Etruscan, Egyptian, ancient Roman. It is very interesting to me."

The only possible flies in the scientific ointment are if all the pick-axes break, which is not likely to happen, or if she gets a big picture, which is much more possible.

"I want to do pictures," she says, "but I want to do something more strong than I have done. These things that I have done, they are fine, but I think now I can do something better. Something with more power."

She was happy with her latest, the delightful comedy, "Buona Sera, Mrs. Campbell." The reports of difficulty on the set she brushes off with a smile.

"I liked doing the picture," she says. "But that crazy Shelley Winters. All she wants to do is quit and go home. Every day."

"Someday, they should make a movie of what happens behind the camera. I tell you, each picture is a different story. This one was like an opera."

Gina says her career would have been easier for her if she had, like many other actresses in Europe, had a "sponsor"—a producer or director who takes a special, personal interest in a particular actress.

"So many girls," she says, "have a producer or director who is a friend, who has his arm around them and takes care of them. I never had this. I was always by myself. I always have to act in self-defense."

Gina's son, Milko, is now 11 and going to school in Switzerland.

Piecing Together Letter is a Job

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Linda Pearce, Joplin city court clerk, received a letter from her brother, Gary, a government employe in Korea.

The letter came in a small box. On the outside was a notification:

"Jig saw puzzle inside. Letter written on back (of puzzle). Have fun. Love, Gary."

She still hasn't read the letter.
